Peer Writing Tutors are here to help

- Improve your planning, logic, and organization
- Refine your clarity, style, citation, and grammar
- Prevent procrastination and writing anxiety

2014 Spring Hours (February 9th – April 30th)

50-minute sessions are available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Mon-Wed 5:00-8:00 PM
Sunday 2:00-5:00 PM

Center for Community (C4C) N351A

Sponsored by ASAP (CU Housing and Dining Services)
Peer Writing Tutors Overview

Who we are
- Peer tutors trained in collegiate writing practice and pedagogy

What we do
- Offer FREE one-to-one appointments with peer writing tutors to discuss a piece of your writing
- Provide feedback and advice about all aspects of writing from thesis statements, organization and development to evidence, logic, and audience issues
- Work with UCB residence hall students on papers from 1000- and 2000-level courses
- Accept papers at any stage from outline to revision; we also help with resumes and personal statements
- Help you understand and address grammar, style, and citation concerns
- Show you how to cite, quote, and paraphrase correctly to avoid plagiarism

What we don’t do
- Write or “fix” papers FOR you. Our goal is to teach you; we provide individualized tutoring that will help you recognize, understand, and address your own grammar, style, and proofreading issues
- Offer drop-off, online or telephone consultations. We believe that face-to-face conversation about writing is the best way for you engage in mindful and productive revision of your writing
- Provide tutoring outside of writing and rhetorical concerns; If you need help with a specific class concept outside of your writing, we suggest visiting your professor or TA

Bring the following when you come to meet with us

1. The assignment directions and any course materials and/or research you’re using for the paper.
2. Your draft in-progress if you’ve started writing, or your ideas if you haven’t. Please bring two printed copies.
3. Specific goals and questions; remember we only have about 50 minutes to talk with you, so the more prepared you are to ask for advice and feedback, the better we can help you.
4. Your laptop and a pen and paper.