The McNair Program is a federally funded TRIO program that supports low-income, first-generation, and under-represented minority undergraduate students for graduate study. The experiences of the McNair scholar are: completion of a scholarly research project with the guidance of a faculty mentor, preparatory academic instruction, a research internship, academic development seminars, academic support/tutoring with faculty affiliates and graduate students, undergraduate research symposia, professional conference presentations, and post-graduate preparatory workshops.

*The Graduate School of the University of Colorado has allotted 50 application fee waivers per academic year for incoming graduate students who were McNair scholars at their undergraduate universities.

Note: Only completed forms will be processed.
