

Play As Pedagogy

A Graduate Teacher Program Workshop
with Prof. Sam Gill of Religious Studies

Tuesday, February 10th
12:30 to 1:30 pm
Guggenheim Geography 3
Lunch will be provided

We know from cognitive science that children learn through play- but what about adults? Learning to apply a playful approach to both course content and methodology, through both conceptual and active embodied experimentation, infuses teaching with the sophisticated creativity so essential to making our material relevant and engaging for students. This workshop will introduce play as a foundational human experience and discuss practical applications of play in the classroom.

Brought to you by the Social Sciences GTP Lead Team