Intercampus Degree Program: A Collaboration

Process

The three campuses are working together with the courses and programs they already have online:

- UC Denver has degree programs ready to go

- UCCS is bringing degree programs online

- UC Boulder has a course inventory of 265 courses; no degree programs to contribute

The proposed degree program creates no new programs on any campus. It requires no curricular changes to the Boulder campus at this time. It relies on UC Denver’s and UCCS’s existing interdisciplinary degrees.

For a student to matriculate at Boulder, we would need to make a Boulder degree, which would require faculty approval.

Announcement: March 2016; RFP to faculty and deans at all four campuses

Preliminary Proposal: Completed by faculty committee, end of summer 2016—approved by Chancellors for further development

Initial Phase: Idea Development, Completed by faculty committee, end of fall 2016—approved by Chancellors for further development

Next Phase: For September 2017 report to the Chancellors on foundational courses and campus approvals.
