EDWIN DIAMOND
Senior Editor of NEWSWEEK, in charge of news from Europe, the Near East, and the Far East.

R. BUCKMILLER FULLER
Engineer, designer, inventor, is perhaps best known for originating the geodesic structure. Born in Washington, D.C., in 1922, he is the son of George Washington Fuller, a member of the Diplomatic Service. He attended the University of Wisconsin, where he specialized in engineering, and received his B.S. degree in 1944. Subsequently, he joined the Mercury Aircraft Corporation where he worked on the development of the Mercurial, the first liquid-fueled rocket engine. In 1946, he joined the United States Army and served in the European Theater of Operations. His work on the development of the Mercurial led to his appointment as Chief Propulsion Engineer for the Redstone Rocket. In 1949, he became Chief Propulsion Engineer for the Redstone Rocket Project, a position he held until 1951 when he started his own company, Fuller Research, Inc. Since then, he has continued to work on the development of geodesic structures, and has been involved in various research projects related to space exploration.

HENRY FAIRFIELD
Distinguished British political commentator, born in 1881, in London, England. He was educated at the University of Cambridge, where he read modern languages and history. He joined the Staff of The Economist in 1903, and became its editor in 1911. He was editor of The Times, London, from 1925 to 1930, and then joined the Financial Times, London, where he remained until 1952. He is the author of several books, including "The English Tradition," "The English Republic," and "The English People." He was also a frequent contributor to The New York Times, The New York Herald Tribune, and The New Republic.

GEORGE FISCHER
Who is currently a member of the Sociology Department of the University of California, Los Angeles. He is the author, among other things, of "A Study of Social Control in a Village Community," published in 1952. He has also written several articles on the subject of the relation between social structure and economic development.

JOHN H. GAYER
Manager, Special Projects Market Development Division, The Dow Chemical Company. Has had professional experience as a consultant to several major corporations and has written extensively on the subject of industrial relations. A graduate of the University of Michigan, he received his B.S. degree in 1943 and his M.S. degree in 1945. He has also served as a consultant to several government agencies, including the National Bureau of Economic Research.

DORICHE WEBSTER HAVICE
Professor of Anthropology at Tulane University. Has published widely on the subject of religious life in the United States. He was educated at Drake University (B.A.), University of Pennsylvania (M.A.), and at New York University (Ph.D.). His research has been published in numerous journals, and he has lectured extensively on the subject of religion in the United States. He was educated at Drake University (B.A.), University of Pennsylvania (M.A.), and at New York University (Ph.D.). His research has been published in numerous journals, and he has lectured extensively on the subject of religion in the United States.

JOSEPH GHEORGHIU
Counselor, Embassy of the Socialist Republic of Romania, Washington, D.C., in charge of economic, cultural, and educational affairs. He has been involved in various international conferences and has also been a member of several committees, including the International Economic Cooperation Committee, the International Cultural Relations Committee, and the International Educational Exchange Committee.

MELVIN HOWARDS
Director, Center for Educational Development, New York University. Has written numerous articles on the subject of educational development, and has served as a consultant to several government agencies and educational institutions.

PAUL JACOBS
Member of the staff of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, California, directed the former study of the Trade Union for the Center, and is the author of several books on the subject of labor relations in the United States.

JAMES AVERY JOYCE
British author, barrister, and economist, is also internationally known lecturer and educator. He was educated at the University of London, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1946. He has also served as a visiting lecturer at many universities in the United States, including the University of California, Los Angeles, the University of Michigan, and the University of Texas. He has also been a member of the editorial board of several journals, including the Journal of International Law, the Journal of International Economics, and the Journal of International Affairs.

PAUL JACOBS
Member of the staff of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, California, directed the former study of the Trade Union for the Center, and is the author of several books on the subject of labor relations in the United States.

ANTHONY HOWARD
Washington Correspondent for THE OBSERVER, Washington, D.C., has been with the Washington Post since 1955. He was educated at Westminster School and Christ Church, Oxford, where he won the Harkness Prize and was elected to the Honor Society in 1955. He was called to the Bar by Inner Temple (Trin. Soc. 1956), and since 1958 he has served as a Second Lieutenant in the Royal Fusi­liers, Territorial Army. From 1958 to 1965 he was a member of the Manchester Guardian, Political Committee of the New Statesman, and a member of the Sunday Times (1964). He is the author of THE OBSERVER since 1966. He is, at the present time, with The Wall Street Journal and a contributor to THE BALDWIN AD (1960) and THE AGE OF AUSTERITY (1963).

NEIL JACOBS
Member of the staff of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, California, directed the former study of the Trade Union for the Center, and is the author of several books on the subject of labor relations in the United States.

DORIS WEBSTER HAVICE
Professor of Anthropology at Tulane University. Has published widely on the subject of religious life in the United States. He was educated at Drake University (B.A.), University of Pennsylvania (M.A.), and at New York University (Ph.D.). His research has been published in numerous journals, and he has lectured extensively on the subject of religion in the United States. He was educated at Drake University (B.A.), University of Pennsylvania (M.A.), and at New York University (Ph.D.). His research has been published in numerous journals, and he has lectured extensively on the subject of religion in the United States.

JAMES AVERY JOYCE
British author, barrister, and economist, is also internationally known lecturer and educator. He was educated at the University of London, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1946. He has also served as a visiting lecturer at many universities in the United States, including the University of California, Los Angeles, the University of Michigan, and the University of Texas. He has also been a member of the editorial board of several journals, including the Journal of International Law, the Journal of International Economics, and the Journal of International Affairs.

PAUL JACOBS
Member of the staff of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, California, directed the former study of the Trade Union for the Center, and is the author of several books on the subject of labor relations in the United States.

JAMES AVERY JOYCE
British author, barrister, and economist, is also internationally known lecturer and educator. He was educated at the University of London, where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree in 1946. He has also served as a visiting lecturer at many universities in the United States, including the University of California, Los Angeles, the University of Michigan, and the University of Texas. He has also been a member of the editorial board of several journals, including the Journal of International Law, the Journal of International Economics, and the Journal of International Affairs.
KEITH KYLE

Fellow of the Institute of Politics, John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University. Former ambassador to the U.K. and a past President of the American Political Science Association. Kyle has written extensively on the subjects of divorce and advertising.

JOHN MIDDLETON

Washington correspondent for the Econo- Mist, was born in Manchester, England, and received his A.B. from Oxford University in 1948. He was a member of the editorial staff of the Economist before entering the British Ministry of Information in 1949. In 1950, he joined the Board of Directors for the VISTA Program and became the Director of Project Development. He has also been a freelance contributor to British and American publications including The New Republic, The Atlantic Monthly, and Science.

ALICE LACY

Executive Director, Brevard County Community Action Association, Cocoa, Florida, has served on various boards including the White House Conference on Rural Health and the Conference on Rural Projects and Acting Director of Rural Projects and Acting Director of Project Development. As the founder of VISTA, she served on the VISTA Task Force, and was the Director of Rural Projects and Acting Director of Project Development. She was also a freelance contributor to British and American publications including The New Republic, The Atlantic Monthly, and Science.

H. E. MOSHE RAE

Ambassador, Israel Delegation to the U.N., New York, Israel, is a native of Austria, who in 1939 joined the Austrian Youth in Brussels and was assigned to the Austrian Delegation. He has served as a member of the Committee for the Rescue of Jewish Youth in Brussels and was decorated by the Czechoslovakian Government. (He returned the decoration last year.) In 1948 he went to Israel from Belgium with a group of independence fighters, and in the following year he was appointed by the Government of Israel as a member of the Committee for the Rescue of Jewish Youth in Brussels. Since 1954 he has been a member of the Jewish National Fund and has held various positions in the Jewish Federations of various countries. He is currently the Director of the American Jewish World Service, New York.

H. E. ABDUL HAMID SHARAF

Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Arab Republic of Egypt to the U.S., Cairo, is a native of Egypt, Egypt, who was educated at the University of Alexandria and the University of Cairo. He has served as a member of the Egyptian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Egyptian Ministry of National Education. He is currently the Director of the Egyptian Consulate in New York.

Frank Oppenheimer

International lawyer associated with Fowl, Leva, Hawes and Symington, Washington, is the author of several books on international law. He is a graduate of George Washington University and holds a Ph.D. in Anthropology from the George Washington University.

VM. LINDQUIST

Special Assistant to the Associate Director of VISTA, served on the VISTA Task Force, and was the Director of Project Development. As the founder of VISTA, he served on the VISTA Task Force, and was the Director of Project Development. He was also a freelance contributor to British and American publications including The New Republic, The Atlantic Monthly, and Science.

DONALD MOORE

A native of Scotland, was educated at the University of Scotland in Glasgow and at Oxford. He became the first Professor of Biochemistry in the University of California in Berkeley. He is also the author of several books on the history of science, including his work on the history of the British Academy. He has also been a member of the editorial board of the British Journal of Sociology, and has been a contributor to the Encyclopaedia Britannica. He has been a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and has been a participant in a number of international conferences. He is currently the Director of the Social Science Research Council, and has been a member of the editorial board of the American Political Science Review.

S. ROSENBG

Trivisal, is a documentary film producer. A photographer for over 20 years, Mr. Rosen- berg has been a foreign correspondent, covering the Arab-Israeli War in 1948. He was also the foreign correspondent for the U.S. Consulate in San Francisco, and in 1946 served as a foreign correspondent for the New York Times. From 1949 to 1952 he was Chief Photographer for the U.S. Office of Information, and in 1954 was the foreign correspondent for LIFE, COLliers, and PAGEants. He is currently the Director of the Corporate Strategy and Management.

H. E. MOSCHE RAE

Ambassador, Israel Delegation to the U.N., New York, Israel, is a native of Austria, who in 1939 joined the Austrian Youth in Brussels and was assigned to the Austrian Delegation. He has served as a member of the Committee for the Rescue of Jewish Youth in Brussels and was decorated by the Czechoslovakian Government. (He returned the decoration last year.) In 1948 he went to Israel from Belgium with a group of independence fighters, and in the following year he was appointed by the Government of Israel as a member of the Committee for the Rescue of Jewish Youth in Brussels. Since 1954 he has been a member of the Jewish National Fund and has held various positions in the Jewish Federations of various countries. He is currently the Director of the American Jewish World Service, New York.
Dr. Taylor is also president of the American Ballet Theater Foundation, and a member of the Board of Directors of the American National Theater and Academy, the National Repertory Theater, the Martha Graham School of Contemporary Dance, the National Book Committee, the Putney School, the Institute for International Order, Americans for Democratic Action, and the League for Industrial Democracy. Dr. Taylor’s main interest continues to be his work in philosophy and education and, in research and writing now under way, he is investigating the possibility of developing world universities in Africa and Asia.

DON S. WENGER, Major Genera* (RET) USAF
Chief of the Department of Traumatology at George Washington University holds both the M.D. and LL.B. degrees. After an extensive career in medical Corps of the U. S. Army and later the U. S. Air Force, Dr. Wenger returned to the Surgeon General’s office in Washington as Chief Professional Consultant and later the U. S. Air Force, Dr. Wenger career in Medical Corps of the U. S. Army and the U. S. Air Force System Command as DCS/Of the Office of Surgeon General, and was the Chief of the Department of Traumatology at George Washington University, where he holds his present position.

HAYDEN V. WHITE
Professor of History, has produced to date two volumes of an intellectual history of Europe: (I) THE EMERGENCE OF LIBERAL HUMANISM; and (II) THE ORDEAL OF LIBERAL HUMANISM. He is also the author of THE CLASSICAL HUMANIST TRADITION (Harper and Row 1966). Dr. White, who holds degrees from Wayne State University and the University of Michigan, and who was also educated at the University of Rome and the Vatican, has been on the faculty of the University of Rochester since 1955. His fields of specialization are medieval and renaissance intellectual history, and the philosophy of history and social theory. In addition to the books listed above, Dr. White is the author of numerous articles that have appeared in scholarly journals.

ANNE WINSLOW **
Editor, INTERNATIONAL CONCILIATION, is a native of Brookline, Mass., who studied in private schools in New Haven and Switzerland. She is also a graduate of Vassar College. In addition to extensive professional experience at George Washington University, where he holds his present position.

with the U. S. Army Signal Intelligence, the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, Miss Winslow also served as Chairman of the NGO Standing and Ad Hoc Committees on the International Human Right Year (1967-68), and as an officer of the Conference of Consultative Nongovernmental Organizations. She is a member of the Board of Directors of the Public Affairs Committee New York City, and has been associated with the Columbia University Seminar on the Problems of Peace. Miss Winslow is author of the technical assistance report "Report on the Conference of Consultant, Selection, and Training of Technical Assistance Personnel," Rome, 1962), which was published in the INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT REVIEW in the summer of 1962.

W. WILLARD WIRTZ
Secretary of Labor, did his undergraduate work at the University of California and Belo\ College, Wisconsin. In 1937 he took his LL.B. degree at Harvard Law School, after which he served briefly on the faculties of the University of Iowa and Northwestern University School of Law. From 1942-43 Mr. Wirtz was Assistant General Counsel with the Bureau of Economic Warfare; and the two following years he served with the War Labor Board. In 1946 he became Chairman of the National Wage Stabilization Board, and from 1946-54 he served as a Professor of Law at Northwestern University’s School of Law. From 1955 to 1961 he was in private law practice; in 1962 he became Secretary of Labor, the position he now holds.

ADAM YARMOLINSKY
Professor of Law, Harvard Law School, and Member of the Institute of Politics, John F. Kennedy School of Government, was formerly Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense, International Security Affairs. Mr. Yarmolinsky was born in New York City and received his B.A. from Harvard University in 1943. Following service in the Army Air Force (1943-46), he received his LL.B. from Yale in 1943. He served as law clerk for Judge Charles E. Clark, U. S. Court of Appeals for the 2nd circuit (1948-49), and was in law practice 1949-50. From 1950-51, he was law clerk for Justice Stanley F. Reed of the United States Supreme Court; he then went into practice with Geary, Gottlieb, Friendly, and Ball. From 1955 to 1957 Mr. Yarmolinsky was Director of the Washington office and later Secretary, of the Fund for the Republic; following this, he served as Public Affairs Editor for Doubleday and Company. He joined the Department of Defense in 1961, and served there in various capacities until he took up his appointment at Harvard in 1966.