WHO IS WHO PROSOPOGRAPHY
27th Annual Conference on World Affairs
University of Colorado
March 11 - 15, 1974

SIDNEY ABBOTT

Sidney Abbott is the National Coor- dinator of the NOW Task Force, and a Research Analyst in New York City. She is on the Advisory Board of the New York Organization of Women and on the Board of Directors of the National Gay Task Force. She is co-author with Barbara Love of Sappho War A Right On Woman.

JAMES ABOUREZK

James Abourezk was born of a Lebanese family on the Rosebud Reservation in South Dakota. He was elected to the House of Representa- tives from South Dakota in 1970, and has long been concerned with the status of the state's farmers and In- dians. In his freshman year in Congress he authored the Family Farm Act of 1972 and the National Power Grid Act, and served on the House Judiciary and Interior Committees. As a senator, he serves as chairman of the Indian Af- fairs Subcommittee and is a member of the Committees on Aeronautics and Space Sciences, Interior and Insular Affairs, and Small Businesses. He is currently working on a major restruc­ turing of the Indian-Federal relation­ ship and is currently working on a major restruc­ turing of the Indian-Federal relation­ ship and has taken a strong interest in alternate sources of energy and public “campaign financing.

IBRAHIM ABU-LUGHOD

Born in Jaffa, Palestine, in 1929, Ibrahim Abu-Lughod left Palestine in 1949. He holds a B.A. and M.A. from Worcester College in Oxford. He graduated from the Architectural College, where he occupies a chair of Geodesic Structures for a Street Gang and the Final Report of the London Advisory Committee on Architecture. His current research is on the dynamics of stability, evolution, and importance of his work can be measured by the reactions of his work. Mr. Brooks appears as a liveried foot­ man in “The Great Gatsby” which opens in New York later this month.

RUSSELL BAKER

Russell Baker has written his “Ob- server” column from Washington, D.C., for The New York Times editorial page for over a decade. These wittingly intelligent pieces on American politics have become classics in their own right. His last book was called Poor Russell’s Almanac. Mr. Baker has four other books to his credit and has written articles for a dozen or so national magazines. His work with the Times goes back to 1954 when he was assigned to the paper’s Washington bureau.

EDWARD BASKERVILLE

The Reverend Baskerville received his M.D. degree in 1937 from St. Louis University and was in private practice in Wisconsin until 1942 when he became a flight surgeon for the Air Force. After six years as a student at served in the British Army in the Mid­ dle East during World War II. In 1974 he resigned as Assistant Secretary in the Criminal Justice Department, where he had been in charge of the air pollution division, to devote full time to his writing. Watership Down is his first novel, clearly reflect­ ing his deep knowledge and love of both literature and nature. In 1972, it received tremendous critical acclaim and in 1973 was awarded the Carnegie Medal and the Guardian Award.

WILLIAM T. ADAMS

Mr. Adams is not only an expert on crime, its causes, and its treatment; he also puts his expertise to work in ac­ tive endeavors. His four present ap­ pointments illustrate the range of his activity: as Training Director of the In­ stitute of Drug Abuse Research and Education at the John F. Kennedy University, California; as Chief Con­ sultant to the National Education Program in Corrections at Boulder, Colorado; as Professor in Criminal Justice at the University of California at Davis; and as Consultant to the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals. Behind these current activities is a long career in corrections, and the meaning and importance of his work can perhaps be measured by the reactions of trust which he has formed with those whom he seeks to help.

MICHAEL BEN-ELI

Born in Israel, Mr. Ben-Eli graduated from the Architectural Association School in London. Since 1965, he has been associated with R. Buckminster Fuller on a variety of projects in Europe, Africa, and the U.S.; and most recently experimented with the development of low-cost geodesic structures for a street gang in New York City. His current research is on the dynamics of stability, evolution, and the social change in social systems.

WILLIAM BRADEN

A general-assignment reporter for the Chicago Sun-Times, Mr. Braden is the author of the widely reviewed technology and the youth counter­ culture. He also wrote The Private Sex, which deals with radical theology and psycho­ logical and mystical literature, now finishing a book on flying. His award-winning articles have ranged from reports of a President to the death of God.

LEWIS M. BRANSCOMB

Currently Vice-President and Chief Scientist of IBM, responsible for guiding the corporations’ scientific and technical programs to ensure that they meet long-term needs, Dr. Branscomb has had a notable career in the field of science. He was chairman of the Joint Institute for Laboratory Astrophysics at the University of Colorado before joining the National Bureau of Stan­ dards in 1951. He was appointed Director of NBS by President Nixon in 1969. Among his other affiliations, he is a member of the Council of National Academy of Sciences and a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Science, and serves on the U.S. State Department’s Advisory Committee on Science and Foreign Affairs.

SHEPHERD BROOKS

A member of the staff of the Education Development Center, Inc., and Massachusetts’ own seven years, Shepherd Brooks recently completed the final report of the Kanpur Indo- American Program (1962-1972). This program was a group effort in which a consortium of United States educational institutions assisted in the development of the Indian Institute of Technology, Kanpur, India, with support from the United States Agency for International Development (AID). During the same period, Mr. Brooks also served as administrator for a similar project in Afghanistan. In ad­ dition to being an educational con­ sultant, he is a Cambridge, Massachussets, writer, and a member of the “Great Gatsby” which opens in New York later this month.

JOHN L. CAMPBELL

Mr. Campbell comes to his position as Director of ACTION for the Kansas City region from an interestingly varied career. After graduating from the Universities of Chicago and Iowa, he had a go at the Merchant Marines, professional golfing, farming, working in construction, and teaching political science and sociology at William Penn materials, been an Iowa State Senator, and is currently Chairman of the Iowa Political Planning Commission.

EDWIN CASEBERE
After receiving his Ph.D. in English literature from the University of Washington in 1965 and serving a short stint in the army, Edwin Casebeer taught at the University of Indiana at Bloomington. Trained in medieval and renaissance English literature, Casebeer was also instrumental in developing a short course in learning skills (How to Survive College). Simultaneously, he wrote three stories for Evergreen Review under the pseudonym of E.F. Casebeer. During his leave in Germany, his interests began to develop in the field of popular culture.

HENRY FAIRLIE
The British author of the recently published The Kennedy Promise and You Can Go Anywhere If You Can Read Where You Going. Before he taught and lectured, for example, he was in succession: a batch worker, an upholsterer, a tugboat deckhand and mate.

Gennady Fedosov
Gennady Fedosov, First Secretary of the Union of Soviet Socialist Writers in Washington, D.C., was born in Byelo, Russia. He majored in American literature at the Moscow Institute of Foreign Languages. In 1958-60 he served in the Middle East, and in 1961 joined the Soviet Peace Committee. In 1961 Mr. Fedosov became the Assistant Secretary General and then the Secretary General of the Institute of Soviet American Relations in Moscow, a non-governmental organization which caters to better understanding between Soviet and American public.

PETE FISHER
With a degree from Columbia University in political science and international relations, Mr. Fisher moved from his graduate program in political theory to write his book, The Gay Mystique, published in 1972. He has also written on his work for fashion and erotic art shows in New York City. He writes songs — some of which are used at the shows — for a documentary movie on the gay movement to be released this year.

SIR JOHN FLETCHER-COOK
A distinguished member of the Colonial Civil Service of Great Britain, and its Empire Beyond the seas as well as the Empire, the Fletcher-Cook lives in England. Sir John is an outstanding example of the kind of character that ensured this Empire so long intact, a pure with as much precision as she once governed it. Apart from his long career service in particular colonies, ending in his Deputy-Governorship of Tanganyika from 1960 to 1961, the period of its transition to independence, he was also a representative of Britain on colonial questions to the United Nations in various punctuations. He now teaches and writes and lectures, and draws on yet another reservoir for a second life; he is a member of the British Parliament for one of the divisions of the great English seaport of Southamp­ton. He is also a member of the Commission of Order of St. Michael and St. George in 1952; and in 1962 he was knighted by his Queen.

H. BRUCE FRANKLIN
Aside from teaching and lecturing about literature, Mr. Franklin is now a principal editor and associate publisher of various Scientific Fiction magazines, and an advisory editor, at the last count, to five university presses, one commercial publisher, and two university presses. His eleven published books so far, are concerned with subjects as far ranging as Herman Melville and Joseph Stalin, nineteenth-century science fiction, and the early twentieth-century revolution. His admirers assume that his "political autobiography" Back Where You Came From, is only a prelude, at the age of forty, to a second volume, You Can Go Anywhere If You Can Read Where You Going. Before he taught and lectured, for example, he was in succession: a batch worker, an upholsterer, a tugboat deckhand and mate.

JOHN GAGNON
With a Ph.D. in sociology from the University of Chicago and considerable training in anthropology, Dr. Gagnon writes widely — nationally and internationally — on juvenile delinquency, adolescent sexuality, the possibility for sexual deviance and its regulation, and pornography. Currently a professor of sociology at the University of New Mexico, the young Stony Brook, he is also associate editor of a number of social science journals, including Social Problems and Journal of Homosexuality. He has recently completed a postdoctoral fellowship at the National Institute of Mental Health.

HOWARD GRUBER
Currently Professor of Psychology at the Institute for Cognitive Studies at Rutgers University, Howard Gruber received his B.A. in 1943 from Brooklyn College and his Ph.D. in experimental psychology and genetics from Cornell in 1950. His early work was in experimental psychology, but later he became increasingly interested in the psychology of creativity. This led to his essay, Darwin on Man: A Psychological Study of Scientific Creativity. He is currently working on a study of the development of the thinking of Professor Jean Piaget, with whom he has been associated since 1955. He has been a member of the Curriculum Committee of the National Science Teachers Association since 1968 and was one of the founders of Psychologists for Social Action.

FREDERICK HACKER
Frederick Hacker is currently Professor of Psychiatry at the University of Kansas, holds the same position at the University of Southern California where he is also Professor of Psychiatry at Law, and is President of the American Psychiatry Association. To fill any leisure moments he might have, Dr. Hacker established and is Chief Staff of a Hacker Center, located in two cities in California. He serves on two panels of court- appointed psychologists and is officially appointed by the Austrian Minister of Justice as Chief Psychiatric Advisor to the Federal Prison Reform. On his suggestion and under his leadership, a special classification and treatment center has been erected in Vienna. He has been once before, in 1966, member of the University of Frankfurt and guest lecturer at universities throughout the United States and in a visiting professorship in the extensive field of psychiatry, including articles on terrorism, aggression, and religion.

THOMAS A. HALSTEAD
Mr. Halstead was recently named director of the Arms Control Program of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, and Acting Director of the Arms Control Association in Washington. In order to join on this dual assignment, he left the job of legislative assistant to Senator Alan Cranston. He has spent most of the past ten years at the Pacific Institute, and has written for, among others, Scientific American, International Journal of Disarmament, and Current: Interdisciplinary Journal.

JANE HOWARD
After graduating from the University of Minnesota, the Howard worked for Life magazine for whom she produced 100 stories. Ms. Howard is now an author of Touch: A Guided Tour of the Human Body, published this year. She has also published A Different Woman, reflections on her career and impressions of her professional woman in America.

LEONARD 0. KIBINGE
Born in 1934, and educated at Makerere University College in London, and at the University of Kenya, he joined the government of Kenya in 1961 and held various positions in the Ministry of Education. In 1971 he was appointed Ambassador of the Republic of Kenya to the United States in 1989, the first Kenyan diplomat to hold that post. He was also delegate and vice-chairman to the United Nations General Assembly for Kenya's representation. had written numerous one-act plays, some of which were published in a collection called The Day the Whore Came Out to Play Tennis. In the spring of 1956, Mr. Kopit's "Indians" was produced in the Royal Shakespeare Company at the Swan Theatre in London; it was produced on Broadway in the fall of 1956. "Indians" was published in 1957, and Kopit has written for many publications and the motion picture industry, and is currently working on a large-scale novel set in New York City. He has written extensively: The American Adam (1954), The Picaresque Saint (1959), and a collection of essays entitled Trials of the World. He has also produced an anthologized volume of criticism, co-edited with Clentab Brooks and Robert Penn Warren, and is presently completing an authorized biography of Edith Horton.

STEVEN A. LINN

Born in Chicago in 1943, Steven Linn received his degree from the University of Illinois, concentrating on sculpture and the visual arts. He later taught at Smith College, the Philadelphia School of Art and Design, and is currently at the University of California at Santa Cruz. Mr. Linn has shown his sculpture in numerous exhibitions throughout the United States. In addition to his career, he also has a degree in architecture.

BARBARA LOVE

A dedicated feminist and lobbyist for gay civil rights, Ms. Love is co-founder of the organization Sapphires: A Right-On Women's Liberated View of Lesbianism. Now a professor of art at Bard College, she is a founder of the largest lesbian publishing house, the Overlook Press. She has written about American politics and history. Her nine children are twins, triplets, and sextuplets. She has published numerous one-act plays, and has written widely on gay liberation in an international context. She lectures extensively, specializing in the fields of the history of political and legal theory and philosophy of law, the sociology of law and politics, comparative law and government both in Eastern and Western Europe. He has published widely in these areas in the United States. He is currently visiting professor of political science at the University of Colorado.

ROBERT J. LOW

Vice President of Oregon's Portland State University, Robert Low is the former project coordinator for the Study of Undemified Flying Saucers. In 1967, he directed the High Altitude Observatory, the National Center for Atmospheric Research, and the University Corporation for Atmospheric Research.

RODERICK MACLEISH

The son of the poet, Norman H. Macleish, and the writer, Leonore Macleish, Rod Liddle began his professionally successful career with United Press International in 1945, and has spent much of his career in the areas of eastern Europe, Middle East, and South America. He is a visiting professor of political science at the University of Michigan, UCLA, and in Paris. The author of many books and articles, his recent publications include United Nations, U.S. Foreign Policy and the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia and the Western Alliance, War and Peace, and Germany.
ALBABA PENA

Currently the Director of the Division of Bicultural Bilingual Studies in the University of Texas at San Antonio, Dr. Pena is an expert in his field. He has experience in teaching and administrative positions in early childhood and elementary education. With a Ph.D. from the University of Texas at Austin, he was Director of the National Association of Voluntary Program in the U.S. Office of Education for four years, and has published widely in the field of bilingual education.

VLADIMIR N. PORSHAKOV

Vladimir Porshakov graduated from the Institute of International Relations in Moscow in 1951 and subsequently served as a diplomat in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs until 1962. He has written extensively on exchange with the United States, including a book on the U.S. Air Force as an Education Officer in Europe. He is currently Assistant Professor at the University of Minnesota before going to the University of Houston, where he was the Director of Bilingual/Multicultural Education in the College of Education.

BERNARD RIVERS

Educated at Cambridge University, Bernard Rivers has been very active in the London-based Operation Omega, a London-based group sending volunteers to Bangladesh. He has travelled widely in Europe, Africa, and the Middle East for 18 years, and has written several articles on Portuguese oppression in Angola and the liberation movements in Angola for The Students' Guide To Sex On Campus, published in 1971.

ANTHONY SAMPSON

Currently Chief American Bilingual Resources Officer for the London Observer, based in Washington, D.C., Sampson has been associated with the Observer for over thirteen years. After coming down from Oxford, he spent four years in Africa editing the Black magazine, Drum. He has travelled widely in Europe, Africa, and the U.S., and is the author of twelve books, the most recent one being The Sovereign State of I.T.

GILBERT SANchez

From 1968 until 1971, Mr. Sanchez was chief advisor on Spanish Sur- name American Affairs for the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare in Washington. His interest in developing policies and programs to assist the Spanish surname population has continued in his success as Assistant Director for Administration at the University of Houston, where he was involved in a bilingual, tri-ethnic, preschool television series; and now as Director of Bilingual/Multicultural Education at the University of Virginia, Virginia. He is developing a resource unit within the school district with specialized skills in the field of bilingual education.

DAVID STABLES

Squadron Leader David Stables is the editor of the London Observer, a British weekly newspaper. He has written extensively on the European defense policies and has been associated with the Observer for over thirty years. He has travelled widely in Europe, Africa, and the Middle East and has written several articles on political and social observation and criticism; and is currently writing a book on the politics of the Middle East.

WILLIAM STRINGFELLOW

William Stringfellow, author, social critic, attorney and theologian, has been described in The Nation as “a radically relevant Christian, with an extra­mely rare species.” His theological commentary on his experience as a white boy in the American south has garnered more attention than any other book on his subject, dealing with the ethics of resistance to the segregation laws in the United States.

DOROTHY WHITE

Dorothy White, writer, civic leader, and lecturer, is presently assuming duties as chief of staff for Dr. Daniel Berrigan when he was a fugitive.

EUGENE WEAVER

Rabbi Weaver has been in the past been Director of the Lebanon State of Ethics at the Jewish Theological Seminary, and Rabbi of the Beth Jacob Synagogue in Hamilton, Ohio. For the past four years, he has been Chair­man of the Department of Sociology at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. He is currently editor of a collection of essays on the values of Israeli youth, and is working on a research project on the development of a handbook for social workers in Israel.

HAYDEN WHITE

Professor of History at the University of California, Los Angeles, he is at present Director of the Center for the Humanities at Wesleyan University. He is the author of several books, and has the additional virtue of being informed. He is the author (with Anthony Sampson) of a study of liberalism and humanism in modern thought, and more recently of The History of the Historical Imagination. He is a translator from both French and German, and has written extensively on the social construction of historical knowledge and the role of the historian in the world.