

ENVS 4100: Special topics in ENVS The Marine and the Maritime:

Day + Time: Two sections of ENVS 4100: Special topics in ENVS- The marine and Maritime, both will be on TTH Section 4100-003: 4-5.15 PM
Section 4100-004: 5.30-6 PM

Location: MacAllister (TBA)

Instructor: Atreyee Bhattacharya, PhD | Faculty, Environmental Studies & Research Affiliate, Institute of Arctic and Alpine Research

Email: atreyee.bhattacharya@colorado.edu | Website: <http://atreyeebhattacharya.typepad.com/>

The seminar style class is a critical thinking course intended for students interested in the marine environment and policies that impact the marine environment. We will explore a range of topics that include threats from both human activity and climate change. This course is an opportunity for undergraduate students to engage in conversations and debates—in a relaxing and stimulating environment—about issues, solutions and the possible futures of the all-important marine environment!!

Weekly sessions will include readings, lectures, discussion, student presentations, guest talks, and in-class writing activities.