If your parent(s) won't provide their information on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) or they don't and will not provide any financial support, complete this form and you'll only qualify for a loan. Financial support includes payment of educational expenses, cash and non-cash support or any living expenses, including living in your parent's home.

Keep in mind that even if your parents don't want to contribute financially, they can still provide their information so you can receive full consideration for financial aid.

PARENT REFUSAL CERTIFICATION

I understand that by refusing to provide information on the FAFSA that:

- My child will not be considered for Federal Pell Grant, other federal or state grants, work-study, or Federal Direct Subsidized Loans.
- My child will only be eligible for a Federal Direct Unsubsidized Loan, which may not cover all of the educational expenses.
- I also understand that I can make a correction to the FAFSA to enter my financial information so my child can receive full financial aid consideration and that doing so does not obligate me to borrow educational loans on my child's behalf or pay my child's tuition or other charges.

I certify that I ended all financial support for my child on: _____.
Date support ended (if applicable)

☐ If you believe you've made an error and failed to provide your parent's information on the FAFSA by mistake, select this option, sign and submit the form. You don't need to provide a parent refusal (above) if you select this option, but you will need to log in to your FAFSA, add parent information and submit it again. CU Boulder will receive the update automatically.

By signing this form, I certify that all the information provided is complete and accurate.
