

5241: SNOW COVER

- Barry, R.G. 1995. Twentieth century variations in snow cover conditions and approaches to detecting and monitoring changes; Status and prospects. Progr. Phys. Geog., 19: 520—32.
- Brown, R.D. 2000. Northern Hemisphere snow cover variability and change, 1915-97. J Climate 13: 2339- .
- Carroll, T.R. .1987. Operational airborne measurements of snow water equivalent and soil moisture using terrestrial gamma radiation in the United States. In: Large-scale effects of seasonal snow cover. IAHS Publ., No.166: 23.
- Cayan, D. 1996. Interannual climate variability and snowpack in the western United States. J. Climate 9: 928-48.
- Cohen, J. 1994. Snow cover and climate. Weather 49(5): 150-56.
- Dore, A.J. et al., 1992. Orographic enhancement of snowfall. Environ. Pollution 75: 175-79.
- Kocin, P.J. and Uccellinu, L.W. 19990. Snowstorms along the northeastern coasts of the United States. Met. Monogr. No. 44, Amer. Met. Soc., 280 pp.
- McCabe, G.J. and Legates, D. R. 1995. Relationships between 700 hPa height anomalies and 1 April snowpack accumulation in the western USA. Int. J. Climatol., 15: 517-30.
- Namias, J. 1960. Snowfall over the eastern Unites States: Factors leading to its monthly and seasonal variations. Weatherwise 13: 238-47.
- Walland, D.J. and Simmonds, I. 1997. Modelled atmospheric response to changes in Northern Hemisphere snowcover. Clim. Dynam. 13: 25-34.