Johno's 'mad journey' - riding across the US
July 1\textsuperscript{st} 2013 – August 16\textsuperscript{th} 2013

- Total days travelled - 42 days
- Total miles covered - 3356.6 miles.
- Total Elevation gain - 108,486 feet $= 33067$ meters (almost 4 times the height of Mt Everest)
- Total calories burned: 161, 564. (If 3500 calories $= 1$ lb, this would mean I would have lost 46.1lbs $= 21$ kilograms in weight if I had not eaten so much.)
- Journey was from Netarts on the Oregon coast to Ocean City NJ.
It was cool on the beach, windy and temperatures about 70 (21 C). But it got hot quickly as I rode east towards Portland.

Lighthouse on the Oregon coast. JohnO’s “mad journey” begins.
JohnO’s “mad journey”.
Columbia River view from the Historic road - Interstate 84 is down below JohnO’s “mad journey”.
Another way to cross the US and I bet it's easier on the touchas. I saw this rental camper at least four times at various sightseeing stops._JohnO’s mad journey._
One of the many falls that tumble down to the Columbia from the Cascades_John’s “mad journey”.

One last surprise before Hood River - a very steep forest road - again completely empty. - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
From the Rowena lookout point onto the original highway. It was fun to speed down these curves. - JohnO's "mad journey".
Crossing into Washington state suggests that this sign about the character of the state is highly misleading, given the landscape here. One of the many local fireworks stands is visible on the left. Since the fire danger is so high, it's puzzling that the fireworks are so readily available. - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
The first 20 miles or so from Hermiston followed the Columbia river but the busy highway with lots of trucks made it hard to enjoy the scenery - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
- JohnO's “mad journey”.
The casino on the left was busy on a Sunday morning. Tribal peoples are allowed casinos on their lands. - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
The grades got steeper towards the top - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
A photo from Friday taken by Tom of the Berkeley group - on the road to Walla Walla. - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
An action close-up from Tom - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
Lengthening shadows on the empty road after 6pm, though it's probably not a good idea to ride and take a photograph at the same time -- JohnO's "mad journey".
My first time here. I like the state outline as the sign -- JohnO’s “mad journey”.
There is still a little snow left on the NW slopes of Lolo Peak (over 9000 feet) - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
The State Capitol on another hill. I like the outline of the state on the flowerbeds - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
Across the street in Marmarth is this disused auditorium built in 1918. It must have been a jumpin' place in the years following the arrival of the Milwaukee railroad line.

- JohnO’s “mad journey”.
Welcome to South Dakota
- JohnO’s “mad journey”.
I just lost an hour's sleep- JohnO's “mad journey”.
If you're a pheasant and reading this blog, for your own welfare, I would advise you to stay clear of the Bowdle area on the fourth Sunday in October. - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
The area has seen a lot of heavy rain and flooding lately and there is a flood watch still in effect. - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
A very German-like church, St. Mary's in Sleepy Eye. I could see the spires for about 8 miles across the cornfields. Minnesota - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
Lots of Biking (sorry Viking) fans in town - JohnO’s “mad journey”.

Every little town should be the 'capital' of something. They must be a contender in the north for the statewide title. At least, they spelled 'capital' correctly. JohnO’s “mad journey”.
A pleasant surprise - I stayed on it for about 20 miles - JohnO’s “mad journey”.
That's nice but I'd feel a lot more welcome if you put some asphalt on the shoulders, instead of the loose gravel on there now JohnO’s “mad journey”.
Rolling hills and Amish farms _JohnO’s “mad journey”._
