

Center for Asian Studies

Where Colorado and Asia Come Together

The Center for Asian Studies

and

The School of Journalism and Mass Communication

are pleased to present

Imagining the Other:

On Doing Media and Cultural Studies in India

Anjali Monteiro

and

K P Jayasankar

Monday, April 16

11:30 to 1:00 pm

Armory Room 218

Lunch Reception to Follow

Dr. Anjali Monteiro is a Professor and Dr. K.P. Jayasankar is Professor and Chair of the Centre for Media and Cultural Studies at Tata Institute of Social Sciences in Mumbai. Both are involved in media production, teaching and research.

Their films have won thirteen national and international awards. Selected publications include “Between the Normal and the Imaginary - The Spectator-self, the Other and Satellite Television in India” in Hagen, I and J. Wasko (ed.), Consuming Audiences: Production and Reception in Media Research, Hampton Press, 2000; “The Plot Thickens – A Cultural Studies Approach to Media Education in India” in Tony Lavender, et al (eds.) Global Trends in Media Education, Hampton Press, 2003; “India: The News of the State and the State of the News” in Jensen, K.B. (ed.) The News of the World, Routledge, 1998; and “Official Television and Unofficial Fabrications of the Self: The Spectator as Subject” in Nandy, Ashis (ed.), The Secret Politics of Our Desires, Oxford University Press, 1998.

For more information, please contact the Center for Asian Studies cas@colorado.edu or 303-735-5312, or bella.mody@colorado.edu