Western Water Law, Policy and Management: Ripples, Currents, & New Channels for Inquiry

June 3-5, 2009

University of Colorado Law School
Wolf Law Bldg., Wittemyer Courtroom

OVERVIEW

In many pockets of the American West, a perfect storm of stresses and demands on water resources are overwhelming our capacity to effectively manage change and accommodate the diversity of interests and values associated with these limited resources. Please join us for a detailed review of the challenges and emerging solutions, drawing on the expertise of a diverse collection of water professionals and the experience of those basins/regions on the front lines in western water law, policy, and management.

Registration available January 20th
