

Dean's Convocation Procedures

Dean's Convocation is an extension of the CU Boulder Campus and College of Music orientation programming. Convo sessions are designed to provide new undergraduate music majors with the knowledge and skills necessary to be successful in making progress toward a music degree. Freshman music majors are required to attend all ten convocation sessions. Transfer student attendance is not required, but individuals are strongly encouraged to attend and participate in any convocation sessions that may be particularly interesting and/or relevant to future success.

Freshman music majors must bring their BuffOne Card to each convocation session (No exceptions). Students should find the convocation monitor and swipe their card in the card reader upon arrival. After the convocation has ended, students will swipe their card again. Students must arrive on time and stay for the entire convocation session in order to receive credit.

Up to two excused absences from Dean's Convocation can be made up by attending two recital/concert events for each absence, and submitting a program and one page report to the Undergraduate Studies office for each recital/concert event.

Students who do not attend the required number of Dean's Convocation sessions will have a registration hold placed on their record and will not be able to register for spring semester classes during their designated registration window.
