This form is provided only for your convenience and the list below merely suggests the type of information most helpful in identifying who might become good Norlin Scholars. You may, of course, provide any comments you deem appropriate.

- How long have you known the student and what is your relationship?
- How do you think this student would contribute to and profit from the Norlin Scholars Program?
- Has this student demonstrated a love of learning as distinct from merely getting good grades?
- In what ways has this student shown creativity and independent thinking?
- Has this student shown exceptional intelligence, creativity, commitment or initiative in a nonacademic context (for example in a cultural or community setting)?
- If you are aware of anything else which would help us assess whether she or he would be a good Norlin Scholar, please tell us about it.
