

Insurance Resource List

All J-1 Scholars (faculty and post-docs) must have health insurance coverage for themselves and their J-2 dependents during the time they are in the United States, as outlined by federal regulations. Refer to

<http://www.colorado.edu/oie/iss/scholar.html>

for more specific information about the health insurance requirement. If you will be employed at the University of Colorado with at least a 50 percent appointment, it is possible you may be eligible for CU insurance. To determine whether or not you are eligible for CU health insurance, please contact your department's payroll liaison. If you did not bring health insurance with you from your home country and do not or cannot subscribe to an insurance plan offered by the University, investigate the companies listed below. From these sites, you can print a brochure, send an e-mail, or enroll, if you choose to do so. However, please be advised that CU insurance does not currently cover repatriation or medical evacuation insurance.

All International Students must have medical insurance while a student at CU-Boulder. If you did not bring a health insurance policy with you from your home country and you do not subscribe to the medical insurance provided by the Wardenburg Health Center, investigate the companies listed below. From these sites, you can print a brochure, send an e-mail, or enroll, if you choose to do so. For more specific information about the health insurance requirement, refer to this website:
