The Department of Philosophy presents the seventh annual Colloquium on Social Philosophy in honor of its late colleague, Bertram Morris, and as a public service to the community. Following the commitments of its namesake, each colloquium considers the philosophical and human value significance of a contemporary social issue. The department believes that these discussions contribute to public understanding of current policy problems.

Bertram Morris joined the faculty of the University of Colorado in the fall of 1947. He was a distinguished scholar and teacher, as well as an active member of the community. His published works include: The Aesthetic Process, Philosophical Aspects of Culture, and Institutions of Intelligence. He was a member of the Executive Committee of the American Philosophical Association, a member of the National Council of the American Association of University Professors, and a member of the State Board of the Colorado Civil Liberties Union. While at the University of Colorado, he won the Thomas Jefferson Award and the award of Research Librarian. Throughout his career he was noted for his teaching, his participation in faculty governance, and his commitment to the social issues of the Boulder community. He initiated and directed an outreach program which still continues at Manual High School in Denver. He was a trustee of the State of Colleges and University Consortium of Colorado. In token of their admiration and gratitude his departmental colleagues instituted this colloquium upon his retirement.
