David Luban is a Research Scholar at the Institute for Philosophy and Public Policy and Professor at the School of Law of the University of Maryland. He is the author of Lawyers and Justice and the editor of The Good Lawyer: Lawyer's Roles and Lawyer's Ethics, and has written many articles on philosophy of law. He has also chaired the professional responsibility section of the Association of American Law Schools

The Department of Philosophy presents this fifteenth annual Colloquium on Social Philosophy in honor of its late colleague Bertram Morris and as a service to the community. In keeping with the commitments of its namesake, each year's colloquium offers a philosophical perspective on some issue of vital concern to the society at large. This year the focus is on law and the system of justice.

Bertram Morris (1908-1981) was born in Denver. Educated at Princeton and Cornell, he taught at the University of Colorado at Boulder from 1947 until his retirement in 1977. He published several books, including The Aesthetic Process, Philosophical Aspects of Culture, and Institutions of Intelligence.

Bert is remembered as much for his committed involvement in the social issues of his community as for his scholarly work. In 1953 he began an outreach program at Manual High School in Denver that still continues. In 1975 he was given a special award by the American Civil Liberties Union of Colorado for his efforts on behalf of academic freedom and his work to improve conditions at the Boulder County Jail.

As an expression of admiration and gratitude, the Philosophy Department established this colloquium when he retired in 1977.

The Department of Philosophy acknowledges with thanks the cooperation and support of the School of Law in sponsoring this Colloquium.
