1. True or false? Adams thinks that if God commanded cruelty he would not be loving.
2. True or false? If Adams thought that God had commanded cruelty, he would give up on the divine command theory.
3. True or false? Adams's theory implies that there is no possible situation in which God commands cruelty.
4. True or false? Adams says that his modified divine command theory gives us the correct analysis of the meaning of the word, "wrong."
5. True or false? Adams does not deny that theists and non-theists use the word "wrong" with more or less the same meaning.
6. True or false? Adams thinks that if we are inclined to think that our disapproval of cruelty in worlds lacking a loving God corresponds to an objective fact, the fact in question may simply be the disapproval of the loving God who actually exists.
7. True or false? Wes is a big fan of divine command theories of moral obligation.
8. True or false? Wes says that God is transcendent and mysterious, that his reasons are often beyond our ken, and that such a God might perfectly well command things that seem "terrible" to us without ceasing to be good.
9. True or false? Wes quoted Obama in his paper.
10. True or false? Wes thinks that omnipotence entails the ability to choose to command terrible things.
