

Center for Native American
and Indigenous Studies

UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO BOULDER

<http://www.colorado.edu/cnaais/>

Indigenous Storytelling and Law

Presented by the Center for Native American and Indigenous Studies

Friday, March 17, 2017

University Memorial Center room 235

1-5pm

- | | |
|------------------------|---|
| 1:00 PM | Welcome: Angelica Lawson, Director CNAIS Invocation: William C'Hair, Northern Arapaho Tribe |
| Opening Session | Mauna Kea to Standing Rock: Stories from the Kia'i Joseph I. Henderson, Michael W. Kyser, Jr. & Marcus S. Yoshizu |
| Session I 2:05 PM | Native American Origins Narratives, A Sense of Place, and Localizing Practice William C'Hair, Chairman Northern Arapaho & Language and Culture Commission Andrew Cowell, University of Colorado, Linguistics |
| Session II 3:05 PM | Reclaiming Native Truth: Taking on Dominant Narratives and Contemporary Struggles Crystal Echohawk, Echohawk Consulting Carla Fredericks, University of Colorado, American Indian Law Program, Law School |
| Session III 4:05 PM | Indigenous Traditions, Sacred Stories, and Law Michael McNally, Carleton College, Department of Religion Steven Moore, Native American Rights Fund Greg Johnson, University of Colorado Boulder, Religious Studies |

This event was made possible with generous support from the Innovative Seed Grant Program of CU's Research & Innovation Office

Winter Morning© by Melanie Yazzie

Special thanks to the following departments and Centers for their generous support:

*American Indian Law Program & CU Law
Anthropology; Art & Art History;
Center of the American West;
Center for Values & Social Policy;
Ethnic Studies; Geography;
History; Linguistics; Political Science;
and Religious Studies*

<https://tinyurl.com/lawandindigenoustories>

Center for Native American
and Indigenous Studies

UNIVERSITY OF COLORADO BOULDER

<http://www.colorado.edu/cnais/>

Indigenous Storytelling and Law

Presented by the Center for Native American and Indigenous Studies

Saturday, March 18, 2017

Wittermyer Courtroom, Wolf Law

9-6:30 pm

Session IV

9:00 AM

Journeys to Complete the Work: Native Testimony and Expertise in NAGPRA

Sonya Atalay, University of Massachusetts, Amherst, Anthropology

Jen Shannon, University of Colorado Boulder, Anthropology

Session V

10:30 AM

Studies in Cherokee Language, Law, and Lifeways

Barbara Duncan, N.C. Museum of Cherokee Indian

John Standingdeer Jr., Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians

Clint Carroll, University of Colorado, Ethnic Studies

Kristen Carpenter, University of Colorado, Law School

Session VI

12—1PM

Reflections on Standing Rock: A Panel Discussion—Room 204—Brown Bag Lunch

Moderator: Danika Medak-Saltzman, University of Colorado, Ethnic Studies

Session VII

1:15 PM

Foundations of Hodínöhsö:ni:h Legal Thought: The Great Law, the Good Mind, and Wampum Traditions

Nicholle Dragone, Black Hills State University, English

Brian Rice, University of Winnipeg, Education

Penelope Kelsey, University of Colorado, English

Keynote

2:30 PM

Mo'olelo: Native Voices of the Land

E. Kalani Flores, Hawaii Community College, Palamanui

Session VIII

4:00 PM

Indian Country and The Trump Administration: Law, Policy, and Activism

Panel Discussion: S. James Anaya, Kristen Carpenter, Richard Collins, Troy Eid,

Carla Fredericks, Maymangwa Flying Earth, Theresa Halsey, Sarah Krakoff,

Charles Wilkinson, Jennifer Weddle

5:30 PM

Reception to follow in Boettcher Hall

This event was made possible with generous support from the Innovative Seed Grant Program of CU's Research & Innovation Office

Winter Morning © by Melanie Yazzie

Special thanks to the following departments and Centers for their generous support:

American Indian Law Program & CU Law

Anthropology; Art & Art History;

Center of the American West;

Center for Values & Social Policy;

Ethnic Studies; Geography;

History; Linguistics; Political Science;

and Religious Studies

<https://tinyurl.com/lawandindigenoustories>