I WANT TO SEND MY THANKS TO:
My loving partner in life, Rachel, for all of her support.
My advisor, Dr. Jerry Jacka, for all of his support.
All of my fellow peers in the anthropology department for providing a sense of community and support, I would have not been able to follow through without them.
The mining communities of southern Colorado for their participation in the research I performed.
My parents for raising and bringing me into this world.

I did it!

I WANT TO SEND MY THANKS TO:

My loving partner in life, Rachel, for all of her support.

My advisor, Dr. Jerry Jacka, for all of his support.

All of my fellow peers in the anthropology department for providing a sense of community and support, I would have not been able to follow through without them.

The mining communities of southern Colorado for their participation in the research I performed.

My parents for raising and bringing me into this world.

A man with a beard and a striped beanie is shouting 'I did it!' with a speech bubble, standing on a rocky mountain trail.

Introduction

When writing, I've begun to see my citations as love letters to fellow thinkers who came before me & who write alongside me. Now, I don't cite others to show how my work 'fills in research gaps'; now I cite to show how my work is part of an ongoing conversation.
