	BELLA PECORARO Hi! My name is Bella Pecoraro and I'm so excited to be a peer mentor. I know starting college can feel like a mix of excitement and total chaos, and I'd love to be the person who helps make that transition easier for you! I'm a business major with an emphasis in marketing and management, and I'm minoring in media studies because I'm obsessed with movies. Whether it's a deep dive into film theory or just rewatching a rom-com for the hundredth time, I'm always down to talk about anything movie-related. Outside of classes, I stay pretty involved on campus. I'm in Gamma Phi Beta, where I've found some of my closest friends, and I'm also part of Women in Philosophy, which has given me the space to have some of the most interesting (and sometimes chaotic) debates about life, ethics, and everything in between. So, if you ever need a good study spot rec or tips on balancing school, work, and life, I've got you! I love problem-solving and thinking about how businesses connect with people, but what I love even more is helping others feel like they belong. College can be overwhelming, but having someone who gets it can make all the difference. If you need advice, a study buddy, or just someone to grab coffee with and talk about life, I'm here for you. I can't wait to meet you and help make your first year as fun and stress-free as possible!
