

Scholars Program

Leeds offers top-achieving scholars a more challenging business curriculum and focused leadership development, including the opportunity to participate in a global experience during their first year.

Scholars Program Overview

A holistic leadership development program for top-achieving undergraduate students.

- Specialized academic and professional advising
- Active mentorship from program alumni
- Global enrichment / international consulting projects
- Personal development and leadership training
- Skill-building workshops and community outreach

Application Requirements

Incoming first-years and rising Leeds sophomores are invited to apply. The process involves submitting a formal application and conducting a business-style interview. Application link can be found below.

303-492-6490 | leeds.ly/future-scholars

Email: LeedsScholars@Colorado.edu

Scholarships and Grants

The Leeds Scholars Program offers each member a first year global trek (if travel is feasible) and a $4,000 opportunity fund. The fund may be used for a tuition scholarship (up to $1,000 per year), unpaid internship, service learning opportunity, attending a conference, or other opportunities to enhance professional and personal growth.

Outreach Projects

Leeds Scholars engage in service leadership projects by researching and implementing a community-based solution to an identified need. Past projects have taught middle-school-age girls coding, helped destigmatize homelessness, sent students to New Orleans, Louisiana, to work on food security, and brought a TEDx talk to CU Boulder.

Global Experience Leeds' First-Year Global Experience program allows first-year students to learn how culture and history impact international business, enhance their intercultural competence and begin building a global network. This trip is fully funded for students in the Scholars Program (when travel is feasible) and incorporates international consulting-style projects. Past trips include Argentina, Japan and South Africa.