Career Guide

EXPLORE

The finance program is designed to provide students with in-depth knowledge and skills necessary for entry-level positions in the financial services industry, including career paths in corporate and public finance, banking, and personal and institutional wealth management. Students study foundational concepts in accounting, financial analysis, financial reporting, and macroeconomics as well as specialized areas including mergers and acquisitions, valuation, entrepreneurship, derivative securities, and foreign exchange markets. Students also benefit from access to the Burridge Center for Finance and CU Real Estate Center as well as numerous student-run clubs.

Industry Overview

Corporate Finance: Positions include financial planning and analysis (FP&A), treasury, corporate development, risk management, corporate real estate, and investor relations. These roles are found in private and publicly traded businesses of all sizes, state and local governments, federal agencies, nonprofits, and foundations.

Banking-Retail or Commercial: Positions include credit analysis, commercial and industrial lending, mortgage lending, loan origination and packaging, branch management, operations, cash management, risk management, financial analysis, private banking, and banking regulatory examiners. These roles are found in commercial banks, private banks, credit unions, savings banks, mortgage banks, and regulatory agencies.

Investment Banking: Positions are broken into Product Groups (Mergers & Acquisitions (M&A), Debt Capital Markets, Equity Capital Markets, Leveraged Finance, and Corporate Restructuring) and Coverage Groups (Industrial, Healthcare, Financial Institutions Group (FIG), Oil & Gas, and Real Estate). These roles are found in bulge bracket banks, regional banks, and smaller boutiques.

Wealth Management & Personal Financial Planning: Positions include sales, customer services, operations, portfolio management, financial advising, and insurance advising. These roles are found in brokerage firms, trust companies, financial partnerships, multi-line insurance firms, and sole practitioner operations.

Institutional Asset Management: Positions include equity and fixed income research, equity and fixed income trading, asset allocation, and portfolio management. These roles are found in pension funds, mutual funds, hedge funds, wealth management firms, and insurance companies.
