THE FREE MIND PODCAST

The Free Mind podcast explores topics in Western philosophy, politics, literature, and history with adventurous disregard for academic fashions and intellectual trends.

ABOUT THE SHOW

Listeners are invited to pull up a chair in an intellectual laboratory where great questions and great books are explored in the spirit of truth-seeking, and conversations are had in a candid style free of scholarly jargon. The podcast engages with professors and public intellectuals who present a diversity of viewpoints in a venue where good faith is granted at the door, and the clear and reasonable expression of ideas is valued more highly than adherence to any ideology or school of thought.

The show is produced at the University of Colorado Boulder's Benson Center for the Study of Western Civilization. The Benson Center promotes study of the intellectual, artistic and political traditions that characterize Western civilization. The Center offers a forum for free inquiry and supports academic freedom and intellectual diversity on campus in a time of increasing political polarization and homogeneity.

RELEASE SCHEDULE

A new episode of The Free Mind podcast airs the second Tuesday of each month. Full transcripts are available on the Benson Center website with every episode release.
