CINE 3002 (3) – Major Film Movements: Changing the World: American Film in the 1960s. This course examines the relationship between American films of the 1960s and their cultural and historical context. Major fears, dreams, issues and events that shaped the decade will be explored, as will directors and stars who rose to prominence during the period. From the promise of the New Frontier, to the anxiety surrounding the Cuban Missile Crisis, to the escalation of conflict in Vietnam; from the rise of civil rights to the birth of feminism and gay liberation; from the shattering of the dream of radical social change to the political disillusionment that would culminate during the next decade in Watergate, the ten years between 1960 and 1970 left an enduring imprint on American film. Special attention will be given to examining the nature of that imprint, that is, to exploring how films express ideology--how they manifest, consciously and unconsciously, the values, beliefs, and ideas specific to their moment in history. Special emphasis will be placed on learning how to succinctly synthesize historical readings and write incisive critical essays that combine historical information and textual analysis. Formerly FILM 3002. Repeatable: Repeatable for up to 12.00 total credit hours. Allows multiple enrollment in term.

NOTE: Students may not enroll in this course after the end of the first week of classes, and this course is not accepting auditors.

Section 801: Snapshots, Memoirs, and Home Movies: Mining the Personal Archive. Vehicles of memory ranging from intriguing to mundane, snapshots, memoirs, and home movies are valued for their intimacy and authenticity, but because they reveal and conceal, their relationship to history is multifaceted and their forms are complex. While some memoirs take the form of graphic novels (Fun Home), literary memoirs often draw inspiration from snapshots (Reading Lolita in Tehran, Speak, Memory). Many narrative films and documentaries make use of “real” and “fake” amateur footage (Peeping Tom, Capturing the Friedmans, Tarnation, Grizzly Man), and since the 1950s, American experimental filmmakers like Stan Brakhage, Phil Solomon, Jeanne Liotta, Andrew Busti, and Christin Turner have evoked, incorporated and transformed the conventions of home movies in innovative ways. In this course, theoretical readings on amateur filmmaking, vernacular photography, and personal memoir illuminate an eclectic mix of narrative, documentary, and experimental films that plumb the relationship between history and memory, truth and fiction, the amateur and the avant-garde within a primarily, but not exclusively, American context. Students will write critically and creatively about family and/or found snapshots, home movies, and personal artifacts and create albums and artist’s statements about their work. Graduate students in all disciplines and undergraduate BFA students in Cinema Studies will have the opportunity to produce new work exploring themes and issues raised in and by the course and write about that work in their final projects. Grad students may enroll themselves. Undergraduate students, please email instructor to enroll: Melinda.Barlow@Colorado.Edu.
