Terms and Conditions

As part of the University of Colorado's commitment to open access, the CU Art Museum will be making collections of public domain works available for download and use. It is the goal of the art museum to have public domain works, which are not limited by other restrictions, available for free download.

To download, please click on the desired image and the download will begin immediately (ensure your pop-up blocker has been disabled). Proper citation of the images is required by CU Art Museum and provided in the image credits. For example: Jeff Wells / © CU Art Museum, University of Colorado Boulder. Whenever possible, please also identify the object by its object ID so that other interested parties can find the information.

Downloads are high quality JPEG images of an appropriate size for presentations and study. If there are circumstances that warrant a larger image size or quality, contact the CU Art Museum registrar; an additional fee may apply.

The CU Art Museum cannot guarantee the availability of all images from our permanent collection nor those of loan items. We cannot provide permission for any image that is not available for download under the open access initiative. You are solely responsible for download and use of images from the CU Art Museum Public Portal including verifying good faith attributions as well as receiving additional rights information as required. If you have any questions regarding the rights status or availability of images on the CU Art Museum's Public Portal, or believe that a copyright attribution is in error, please contact the CU Art Museum registrar.