Faculty Fellows in Community-Based Learning
Request for Proposals (RFP) – Due 2/1/2018

CU Engage is pleased to announce this RFP that will provide grants of up to $4000 for Faculty Fellows in Community-Based Learning. This program provides resources and support for faculty to design a new course or modify an existing course to include a community-based learning component.

CU Engage is an interdisciplinary center based in the School of Education and serving the Boulder campus. We support programs and initiatives that work collaboratively with community groups to address complex public challenges through academic courses, research projects, and creative work. We do this by developing and sustaining equity-oriented partnerships, organizing opportunities for students to learn alongside community members, and supporting faculty and students to implement ethical and rigorous participatory research.

The aim of the Faculty Fellows Program is to expand, deepen, and institutionalize community-based learning at CU-Boulder. We define community-based learning as an intentional pedagogical strategy to integrate student learning in academic courses with community engagement. This work is characterized by reciprocal and mutually beneficial partnerships between instructors, students, and community partners. The goal is to address community-identified needs and ultimately create positive social change. Critical reflection is also an essential component to enhance students’ learning of course content, understanding of the community, and sense of civic agency.

For examples of current Faculty Fellows see here. For assistance in finding community partners, email Manuela Sifuentes, Director of Community Partnerships, Manuela.Sifuentes@Colorado.EDU.

Benefits for Faculty Fellows

- Resources: Each Faculty Fellow receives $4,000, which can be used for summer salary, teaching/research materials, funding needs of community partner, or other appropriate uses, as determined by applicant and approved by CU Engage Selection Committee and Chair.
- Professional development: Fellows participate in a Community-Based Learning Institute that provides a dedicated process and structure to develop syllabi, assignments, and other tools needed to successfully implement a community-based learning course.
- Membership in professional learning community: Exchange ideas and intellectual support with other Fellows at the Institute and beyond.

Faculty Fellow Commitments

- Participate in Course Development Institute during 2018 Maymester. The Institute will consist of three half-day seminars (Wednesdays May 17, 24, 31 from 12:30-4:00PM). Fellows are expected to complete readings on community-based pedagogy in advance of the Institute.
- Meet with CU Engage Associate Director, Dr. Roudy Hildreth, in advance of the Institute to discuss goals and interests. This meeting will be the basis for identifying discipline specific resources, materials, and model courses.
- Design a new course or significantly modify an existing course so that it uses community-based learning as a central pedagogy.
- Teach the community-based learning course as soon as feasible (within one year for an existing course and within two years for a new course), with the expectation that it will be taught for at least two iterations.
- Participate in assessing course outcomes for students and/or community partners.
- Give a presentation about the course to department after teaching the course.
Expectations

- We expect that grant recipients will serve as advocates and resources for community-based learning in their home department.
- Grantees may be asked to present their experiences, provide consultation, or serve as mentors for faculty interested in community based-learning fellows (we are mindful of time commitments).

Application checklist

- Grant proposal
- Budget and narrative
- Letter of support from community partner
- Faculty Fellows Grant Agreement Form, signed by applicant and Chair or Dean
- Appendix: Syllabi (for existing courses to determine the extent it is being modified) and other supporting documents (assignments, scholarship, etc).

Grant Proposal Requirements

Length: Five double-spaced pages maximum, not including letter of support, agreement form, or syllabi.

1. Applicant and Course Information
   a. Applicant name and contact information
   b. Title, course number (existing courses), faculty/instructor(s), contact info.
   c. How often is / will the course be taught?
   d. Expected enrollment?
   e. Does or will the course fulfill a major, minor, or general education requirement?

2. Course Goals and Strategies
   a. What are the learning objectives of the proposed CBL course?
   b. What is the academic or disciplinary content of the course?
   c. What are the expected activities for students in their community placement?
   d. How do the community-based components connect with the academic content of the course? Please describe structured reflection assignments/activities to facilitate connection of the service activity with academic concepts and to encourage critical thinking.
   e. For existing courses, attach as an appendix the course syllabus that will be modified.

3. Community Focus and Reciprocity
   a. Identify and describe the community partner(s). (If you do not already have a community partner, and would like help connecting with existing initiatives or partnerships, please email cuengage@colorado.edu for information about existing initiatives that your course might join).
   b. Describe how you will collaboratively plan with community partners and how the CBL course will support the priorities and stated needs of community partners.
   c. Describe whether and how your course works with under-served communities.
   d. Describe the anticipated impact on the community that results from the partnership between your CBL course and community organization(s).
4. Assessment
   a. Please be prepared to provide a short description of a planned assessment strategy. This strategy should address the following details:
      i. How will you understand if your course has achieved its goals? Include information about specific goals and how you plan to measure them (e.g. what tools/instruments/rubrics will you use?).
      ii. How are students, faculty, and/or the community partner involved in the assessment? (Do they supply data, or participate in instrumentation?)

5. Sustainability
   a. Describe plans for sustainability and departmental support for offering the community-based learning course on a continuing basis. This could include your plan to put this course in regular rotation, allow it to meet a requirement for major, minor, or certificate, or recruit multiple faculty members who will teach the course.

Budget and narrative (1 page) Requirements. Please provide a budget showing how you will use the $4000. Details of the budget should be provided in a budget narrative explaining how projected expenses relate to the community-based component of the course. Funds may be used for:
   - Summer compensation of faculty/staff time for course development;
   - Teaching/research materials;
   - Funding for community partners;
   - Other appropriate uses, such as resources for community partners or support for a student assistant.

Letter of Support Requirements
   The letter of support from your community partner should document their understanding of the project, how you and the partner will co-develop the project, and how the project will address the organization’s needs.

Eligibility and Selection Process:
The CU Engage Faculty Fellows Program is open to all CU Boulder faculty members (instructors, lecturers, and tenured and tenure-track faculty) from any department. Priority will be given to proposals that are sustainable and integrated into departmental or core curricula. We especially encourage teams of faculty to apply in cases where two faculty alternate teaching the same course, where there is a sequence of courses as part of a degree program, or faculty from different disciplines co-teach the same course. If instructors are applying as a team, each will receive the full grant (e.g. $8000 for a team of two instructors).

Deadline for proposal and supporting documents: Monday, February 1, 2018.

Please submit your proposal via CU Boulder’s Outreach and Community Engagement Awards website: https://cuboulderoutreach-engage.secure-platform.com/a/solicitations/home/3160
