Course description.

What is a government? What do governments do and why?

We will study the way governments manage resources. Economic principles will guide us in understanding why governments exist and what economic activities they should undertake. These are normative questions. 'What is the effect actual government policies' is a positive question, which we will address in turn. Understanding and analyzing the way governments work is our primary objective.

Academic Requirements

The course is based on Econ 3070 and Econ 3080. Masterhood of the material covered in the pre-requisites is essential for passing the course. Students are required to review their calculus tools to be able to solve homework assignments and exams. An ideal answer to a written question (in a HW or an exam) should contain a concise verbal explanation of the argument, a calculation to support the argument (either an algebraic or a numerical one) and, if applicable, a graphical illustration.

Attendance

Attendance is required. Students who miss more than six classes (for any reason) shall not receive a passing grade.

Schedule

All exams are given as scheduled. Students who miss an exam shall not receive a passing grade. There are no make-up exams.

Homework assignments have to be turned in before or on the due date before the commencement of the lecture. Late submissions receive zero credit.

Additional Accommodations

If you qualify for accommodations because of a disability, please submit to me a letter from Disability Services in a timely manner so that your needs may be addressed. Disability Services determines accommodations based on documented disabilities. Contact: 303-492-8671, Willard 322, and
