Textbook: Krugman, Paul and Robin Wells. (2009). Macroeconomics, Worth Publishers, 2nd edition

Prereq: Econ 2010 (Principles of Microeconomics)

Description

Macroeconomics is the study of the economy as a whole. It examines the aggregate behavior of the economy. This is different from microeconomics, which is the study of the economic behavior of individual consumers, firms, and industries. We will study how economists model the relationships between aggregate economic variables and examine how various fiscal and monetary policies can affect the results. The main goal of this class will be to improve your economic literacy and ability to apply economic models to analyze world events

Recitation

Recitation is intended to give further insight into what you learn in lecture. To that end your recitation assignments and grades will be designed to reinforce what you learn in lecture. Your TA will grade you in recitation as they see fit, and will explain their policy in class. Recitations begin the second week of class.

Grading

Grade Breakdown:

Three Midterms 20% each

Recitation 20%

Final exam 40%

For this class we will be following the book rather closely. However, I may use examples or ideas not in the book in lecture. Anything covered in class is fair game for exams.

You may notice that the breakdown does not total 100%. The lowest of your 3 midterm and recitation grades will be dropped. If you miss any one of your midterms there will be no makeups for any reason, and the weight of that midterm will be replaced by your recitation grade. In other words, if you miss a midterm this will count as your dropped grade. If you miss two midterms, the second will count as a zero on your final grade. You cannot reschedule or miss your final exam unless you have three finals on the same day. If this is the case you must bring me evidence of the three exams within the first four weeks of the semester.

There will be no extra credit assignments this semester and no attendance policy. However, on three random occasions during the semester I will take attendance and everyone in class will get a point added to their final grade.

University Policy

Harassment Policy: The University of Colorado at Boulder policy on Discrimination and Harassment (<http://www.colorado.edu/policies/discrimination.html>) applies to all students, staff and faculty. Any student, staff member or faculty member who believes (s)he has been the subject of discrimination or harassment based on race, color, national origin, sex, age disability, religion, sexual orientation, or veteran status should contact the Office of Discrimination and Harassment (ODH) at (303) 492-2127 or the Office of Judicial Affairs at (303) 492-5550.

Disability Policy: If you qualify for accommodations because of a disability, please submit a letter from Disability Services to me in a timely manner so that your needs may be addressed. Disability Services determines accommodations based on documented disabilities. Contact: 303-492-8671, Willard 322.

Religious Observance Policy: Campus policy regarding religious observances requires that faculty make every effort to reasonably and fairly deal with all students who, because of religious obligations, have conflicts with scheduled exams, assignments, or required attendance. If you have a conflict, please contact me at the beginning of the semester so we can make proper arrangements.

Honor Code: All students of the University of Colorado at Boulder are responsible for knowing and adhering to the academic integrity policy of this institution. Violations of this policy may include: cheating, plagiarism, aid of academic dishonesty, fabrication, lying, bribery, and threatening behavior. All incidents of academic misconduct shall be reported to the Honor Code Council (honor@colorado.edu; 303-725-2273). Students who are found to be in violation of the academic integrity policy will be subject to both academic sanctions from the faculty member and non-academic sanctions (including but not limited to university probation, suspension, or expulsion).
