

Emery Ryujin Duffin

For this project I decided to create a book cover that the artist could use. This piece connects to the book in a very literal sense, beginning with the pages flying around the cover, these symbolize Pacy's talent for writing. The coins and food that circle together symbolize the attributes (wealth and prosperity) of the year of the dog. The dog in the center is a direct representation of this as well.

I was really inspired by Asian block print art, and gold foil art, and I wanted to incorporate that into this piece. Because these methods are so difficult, I decided to go with Digital art, so that I could layer colors and move this around easily. I hope the audience takes away some appreciation for Asian art as well as a desire to read the book.