Humanities Help:

- The Director of Undergraduate Studies for Humanities, Annjeanette Wiese (annjeanette.wiese@colorado.edu), has made a few recommendations as far as strategies for success in the Department.
 - Find a peer in class to study and discuss the material with.
 - Find guides online to help the student understand the basics of what they are reading--in addition to the reading itself, of course. Annjeanette can provide some specific resources for the student with this in mind or they can look for resources from instructors at universities, which are often helpful--sometimes it's just a matter of needing to understand the basics so that they can think more deeply about the texts.
 - Listen to an audio version of the text while reading along.
