

Ceramics Untitled
Zoe Boiarsky

Ceramics is a media where art and craft overlap. Pieces are created that are both artistically beautiful and functional. The medium of ceramics exists in daily life, in your morning cup of coffee or the bowl of soup on a winter day. For this set, I set out to create a group of vessels that nested within each other that would be used in daily life. The carving on the side of the mug and cup are accentuated by a glaze called Butter that shows variation in thickness. The other glaze, Arribe, is layered over to symbolize the overlap of art and craft.
