

Eames Room: A Space for Two, Highly Rendered Space
Bryan R Martino

To honor the legacy of the late Ray and Charles Eames, I was tasked to create a scaled, photorealistic space for the couple to continue their design work in quarantine. This 10ft x 10ft x 10ft room features a workstation, a place to rest, and a place to learn, as well as reincarnations of their most famous product designs. Translating orthographic drawings into a 3D model was a substantial learning process, but ultimately conveys a colorful interpretation of these iconic mid-century designers.
