

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

Thanks to Kyla Jung, the current and rising flock leaders, the RAs, and everyone who made last night's Formal Dance such a great success! Another fun time is upcoming: the ROCKY HORROR SHOW this Friday evening. It's a wild and crazy rock-and-roll theatre event and Honors RAP has reserved the front two rows. Bring $3 to buy a bag of stuff to throw on to the stage!

Global performance. World-class entertainment. You have to be here.

CU PERFORMING ARTS
theatre

RICHARD O'BRIEN'S

ROCKY HORROR SHOW

ROCKY HORROR SHOW

Friday, March 10
Meet in Smith
at 7 pm

Bring $3 to buy stuff to throw!

Sign-ups starting Monday

Attendance Tracker: Yes

March 3-19

University Theatre, tickets $24

When a newly engaged couple gets caught in a storm and meets the tan, muscular new creation of a mad transvestite, their world is forever changed. This classic musical is an outrageous mashup of campy science fiction, Marvel-inspired characters and rock 'n' roll tunes of every vintage.

colorado.edu/theatredance • 303-492-8008

CU ★ PRESENTS

University of Colorado Boulder

When Life Knocks You Down, How Do You Get Back Up?

By Chelsea Magyar

This semester, the Smithsonian is asking life's big questions. We asked freshman Jesus Banuelos-Rivera, an environmental design major with an emphasis in architecture, to talk about resiliency.

Jesus knows that bad days happen. "Life's always going to come and try to knock you off your feet. There will definitely be good times and bad times, but you gotta go through the bad times to really know when the good times are around and really appreciate them more for when you get them."

When life knocks Jesus down, he turns to friends to help him back up. "Definitely the best support network I've had has been my friends and all the communities I've found here at CU. Just finding people who understand what I'm going through sometimes and knowing that I'm not really alone in whatever might be troubling me."

When feelings of inadequacy and not performing to his greatest potential trouble Jesus, he also tries to remember his originality. "What definitely helps is just knowing what I am good at and having those passions that I can enjoy myself in."

Jesus attributes his resiliency, the ability to enjoy life again after suffering trials, to his parents. He knows how to get back up, but he also sees the value of falling down. "When you're at your darkest time, that's when you really find out who you are, who your real friends are, and what you're all about."

