COURSE OBJECTIVES AND DESCRIPTION

This course is the introduction for the inter-disciplinary CU major which encompasses political science, anthropology, geography, economics, and history. The major can also include a foreign language component. As an International Affairs major you will begin your studies with a survey of the most compelling global issues of the day and then go on to detailed analysis of international relations and economics. Follow-on courses also focus on problems of international development, the environment, international economic relations and United States foreign policy. Since this is an interdisciplinary course, it is taught by faculty from each of the participating departments and each brings the biases and paradigms of their own backgrounds to the course. This semester the course is taught by a political scientist and therefore, global governance, international relations and their relationship to current world issues will be the primary focus. We will certainly touch upon geography, international political economy and the history of the issues with which we will deal.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Surgeon General's Warning

Despite the fact that this course bears a 1000 number designation, it is a four-credit course with a substantial workload. In addition to the midterm and final exams, this course requires a substantial amount of writing. Please familiarize yourself with the course requirements. If you are not sure now that you will be able to commit the necessary time and effort to complete the required work, you should consider dropping the course.

Readings, Attendance and Class Participation

It is essential that students attend every class on time. Regular attendance and active participation in any class discussion will enhance your understanding of the course material and almost certainly improve your performance on the mid-term and final exams, which are together worth 50% of the course grade. Attendance at lecture and recitation is also a large portion of your 20% Recitation grade. Notifying your TA by email prior to class will constitute an excused absence. In this semester, the required readings range from 60 to 100 pages per week, as set out in the course schedule. Your knowledge and understanding of the required readings will be tested in the midterm and final exams. Students should come to class having already completed (and thought carefully about) the assigned reading for each class period.

Mid-Term and Final Exams

The mid-term exam will be held on Tuesday, March 6th in the usual class meeting time and place. The final exam will be on Sunday, May 6th from 4:30-7:00pm in the regular lecture room. The final exam will be comprehensive, but will focus primarily on the materiel after the midterm. Students must write the final exam in order to pass the course. Blue books should be purchased by each student and brought in the class period prior to the midterm and final; 8.5x11 Blue books are preferred. Do not put your name on your Blue book. Make-up exams will not be given unless the instructor has been notified in advance or a doctor's note is provided. There will be a geographic component on both the midterm and final exams related to topics we have discussed in class.

Recitation

The teaching assistant's assessment of each student's attendance and performance in recitation will count 20% of the final course grade. Recitation syllabi are linked to this syllabus above. You will be expected to participate and to demonstrate familiarity with the contents of the required readings in your recitation discussions.

Current Events

Several students will present a current event orally in recitation each week. The presentation details will be discussed in detail in recitations. The source should be from a respected news source, be less than one week old and pertain in some way to topical global issues. Each student should try to relate the article to some element of what we have been discussing in class. News reports on the Internet are also acceptable sources. The current event presentation will be part of your 20% recitation grade.

Weekly Thought Papers

At the end of lecture each Thursday, a thought question will be posed to the class and posted on the course web site. The question will relate to either the topic in Tuesday's or Thursday's lecture. Students will write a two-page, single-spaced (Approximately 900-1000 words) response to the question to turn in electronically the following week to their TA by 5pm Tuesday. Please include a word count on the first page. These papers should be properly documented and footnoted using the course readings. Papers will be graded 50% on content and 50% on grammar, punctuation and spelling. Late Papers will not be accepted unless prior arrangements have been made. On a random basis, these electronic copies papers will be checked for plagiarism. There will be ten questions posted. Each student must answer at least FIVE of them. Students completing fewer than five will have zero's averaged in with their grades on the completed papers. Those students completing more than five will only have six best grades included. These thought papers account for 30% of your final course grade.

GRADING CRITERIA

Mid-term exam	25%
5 Thought Papers	30%
Final exam	25%
Recitation (Includes Attendance)	20%
Total	100%

Final Course Grades will be curved unless a straight 90/80/70/60 etc... proves more beneficial to the students (higher overall grade average). If curved, the mean overall average will become the highest C grade, and two standard deviations below the mean will be necessary to fail the course.

One standard deviation about the mean becomes the criteria for an A grade. The grading policy will be explained in detail on the first day of class.

REQUIRED READINGS

There are no textbooks to purchase for this class. All course readings (and World Atlas) delineated in the course schedule are available at the following online site to which all students will subscribe: http://www.aatw.me. This site, America and the World (AATW), provides both distribution and reference for this course, but also copyright payment for some of the articles you will read. Access to this website will be purchased for $49.95. Access will be explained in detail in class. The readings for this course are interdisciplinary, including works from political science, history, econ and geography. All of the readings are required. Other readings may be linked to this syllabus.

ADMINISTRATIVE INFORMATION:

CELLULAR TELEPHONE/LAPTOP COMPUTER POLICY

Needless to say, all cellular phones must be turned off and put away at the beginning of each class meeting. Classes failing to comply will be issued a stern warning on the first occasion of a phone ringing during class time. The entire class will have a pop quiz over the previous reading assignments/lectures on the second and subsequent occurrences. Phones will not be out on desks or used during any quiz or examination.

Laptop computers have been allowed in my classes for the 20 years that I have been teaching at CU, beginning this semester however they will not be allowed to be out or open in class. I still believe that they can assist learning in the classroom, but significant new research shows that taking notes by hand increases learning. Also, a new study shows that laptops open and displaying non-class materiel are distracting not only to the user, but the students in view of the laptop and inhibit learning. Students can apply for exceptions for reason of disability or a proven track record of in class note-taking on the computer. Here is a link to an article about laptop impact on education: "Laptops Are Great. But Not During a Lecture or a Meeting", New York Times Op Ed, By SUSAN DYNARSKI NOV. 22, 2017

Boulder Provost's Disability Task Force recommended syllabus statement:

If you qualify for accommodations because of a disability, please submit your accommodation letter from Disability Services to your faculty member in a timely manner so that your needs can be addressed. Disability Services determines accommodations based on documented disabilities in the academic environment. Information on requesting accommodations is located on the Disability Services website

(www.colorado.edu/disabilityservices/students). Contact Disability Services at 303-492-8671 or dsinfo@colorado.edu for further assistance. If you have a temporary medical condition or injury, see Temporary Medical Conditions under the Students tab on the Disability Services website and discuss your needs with your professor.

Recommended religious observances syllabus statement:

Campus policy regarding religious observances requires that faculty make every effort to deal reasonably and fairly with all students who, because of religious obligations, have conflicts with scheduled exams, assignments or required attendance. In this class, as stated earlier in this syllabus for normal class days, students need only email their instructor/TA in advance to procure an excused absence. However, for examinations, in-class presentations or debates, students must arrange for a makeup in advance of their absence.

Office of Institutional Equity and Compliance (OIEC) recommended syllabus statement:

The University of Colorado Boulder (CU Boulder) is committed to maintaining a positive learning, working, and living environment. CU Boulder will not tolerate acts of sexual misconduct, discrimination, harassment or related retaliation against or by any employee or student. CU's Sexual Misconduct Policy prohibits sexual assault, sexual exploitation, sexual harassment, intimate partner abuse (dating or domestic violence), stalking or related retaliation. CU Boulder's Discrimination and Harassment Policy prohibits discrimination, harassment or related retaliation based on race, color, national origin, sex, pregnancy, age, disability, creed, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, veteran status, political affiliation or political philosophy. Individuals who believe they have been subject to misconduct under either policy should contact the Office of Institutional Equity and Compliance (OIEC) at 303-492-2127. Information about the OIEC, the above referenced policies, and the campus resources available to assist individuals regarding sexual misconduct, discrimination, harassment or related retaliation can be found at the OIEC website.

The HONOR CODE recommended syllabus statement:

All students enrolled in a University of Colorado Boulder course are responsible for knowing and adhering to the academic integrity policy. Violations of the policy may include: plagiarism, cheating, fabrication, lying, bribery, threat, unauthorized access to academic materials, clicker fraud, resubmission, and aiding academic dishonesty. All incidents of academic misconduct will be reported to the Honor Code Council (honor@colorado.edu; 303-735-2273). Students who are found responsible for violating the academic integrity policy will be subject to nonacademic sanctions from the Honor Code Council as well as academic sanctions from the faculty member. Additional information regarding the academic integrity policy can be found at the Honor Code Office website.

The development of the Internet has provided students with historically unparalleled opportunities for conducting research swiftly and comprehensively. The availability of these materials does not, however, release the student from appropriately citing sources where appropriate; or applying standard rules associated with avoiding plagiarism. Specifically, the instructor will be expecting to review papers written by students drawing ideas and information from various sources (cited appropriately), presented generally in the student's words after careful analysis, synthesis, and evaluation. An assembly of huge blocks of other individuals' existing material, even when cited, does not constitute an appropriate representation of this expectation. Uncited, plagiarized material shall be treated as academically dishonest, and the paper will be assigned an 'F' as a result. Papers submitted by any student, written in part or in whole by someone other than that student, shall be considered to constitute fraud under the University Honor Code, and result in the assignment of an 'F' for the entire course. If the student is confused as to what constitutes plagiarism, he/she should review the CU Honor Code on this topic. If you have any questions regarding proper documentation in your writing, please discuss it with your instructor.

Recommended classroom behavior syllabus statement:

Students and faculty each have responsibility for maintaining an appropriate learning environment. Those who fail to adhere to such behavioral standards may be subject to discipline. Professional courtesy and sensitivity are especially important with respect to individuals and topics dealing with race, color, national origin, sex, pregnancy, age, disability, creed, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, veteran status, political affiliation or political philosophy. Class rosters are provided to the instructor with the student's legal name. I will gladly honor your request to address you by an alternate name or gender pronoun. Please advise me of this preference early in the semester so that I may make appropriate changes to my records. For more information, see the policies on classroom behavior and the Student Code of Conduct.

Please arrive on time and do not leave early. If you absolutely must leave early, please let me know at the beginning of class and sit near a door so you do not cause too much disruption. Similarly, if arriving late, please take a seat as quickly and quietly as possible. Take care of all your business before class begins; do not leave and return during class as this creates a disturbance to others.

Taking this course signifies acceptance of the terms and conditions stated in this syllabus.
