Requesting H-4 Dependent Status for Family Members (Spouse or Children)

The spouse and unmarried minor children (under 21-years of age) of an H-1B employee are eligible to obtain H-4 dependent status. H-4 filings and visa applications are the responsibility of the H-1B scholar and their dependents. Please carefully read the information below to determine which option applies to your family:

Applying for H-4 status from outside of the U.S.

Dependents who are outside the US can obtain H-4 status by applying for an H-4 visa and going for an interview at their nearest U.S. Embassy or consulate, then entering the U.S. with the H-4 visa. After the H-1B Approval Notice has been issued by USCIS, an H-4 visa application can be started online here; a visa interview at a US embassy is also required. Start the process after the H-1B approval takes place. Contact the US Embassy or consulate where the visa interview will take place for specific information.

**Canadian citizens are exempt from visa requirements; therefore, Canadian citizen spouses and children eligible for H-4 status enter the US directly with a copy of the H-1B's Approval Notice and other required documents.

Applying for a Change of Status to H-4 or an Extension of current H-4 status from inside the U.S.: Dependents applying for a change of status to H-4 or an extension of their current H-4 status while staying in the U.S. must complete the appropriate application with USCIS. ISSS does not provide advice on the specifics of this process or file this application with the H-1B petition; if you have questions, please consult USCIS or an immigration attorney.

The general process is outlined below for an Extension or Change of Status with USCIS. It may be possible to complete the Form I-539 online. Review the USCIS website to determine if you are eligible to file online.

- Complete the Form I-539 and if required, Form I-539A (when filing for H4 status for more than one dependent).
  - If filing for a Change of Status to H-4 or for an Extension of Current H-4 status, review the USCIS website for instructions, access the Form I-539 and I-539A, filing tips and filing fees.

Note: A Biometric appointment is no longer required for any person who submits an I-539.
