

Remember when we were kids, and we would willingly wear matching outfits, pass up play dates and sleepovers with friends to hang out with each other, and untruthfully answer strangers' question "Are you guys twins?" with a resounding, "Yes", just because?

Glad things haven't changed.

To my best friend in the universe, my sister, the Delilah to my Destiny: Congratulations on completing your undergraduate degree! You did it!

Your perseverance has inspired me to work harder; your quick sense of humor has always dried my tears; and your unflappable determination has always - and will always - push you through any challenge, no matter how formidable it seems.

I've always known that you'll accomplish so much in this life. Congratulations on this major milestone! I can't wait to spend this next chapter (and beyond), together ☐

Love,

Your Sister
