

Political Campaign Internship

Looking for campaign experience? Interested in politics? Want to work for a thriving local campaign? Interested in the criminal justice system?

The BRIAN MASON for DISTRICT ATTORNEY campaign is seeking applicants for an internship on a Democratic campaign in a competitive District Attorney's race in Colorado's Adams and Broomfield Counties. This position is open to college students, law school students, high school students and others interested in gaining political campaign experience.

Responsibilities vary; however, interns will be working in a fast-paced, ever-changing environment and will need to be flexible while completing day to day tasks. Interns will gain first-hand experience and exposure to political campaigning at the local level and will work directly with the campaign manager, field director, digital director and the candidate.

Responsibilities include:

- Direct voter outreach and volunteer management
- Fundraising and data management
- Website, social media and digital communications
- Research and writing
- Phone-banking
- Filling in on projects where needed

Preferred qualifications:

- Effective oral and written communication skills
- Reliable work ethic
- Ability to balance multiple tasks
- An interest in politics or the criminal justice system, and making the world a better place
- Previous campaign or political experience valued, but not required

Please send a resume and a short e-mail or cover letter to:
