

PSCI 3281-001 Development of American Political Institutions- E. Eastman

This class meets in-person on Tuesdays and Thursdays throughout the semester. Students are expected to attend these sessions and participate regularly. Attendance and participation are graded components of the class. There are additional writing and research components that will be outlined on the syllabus. As of the posting of this announcement, there is NO fully remote/online option to this class. Students who are ill or required to quarantine or isolate temporarily will be accommodated with alternate work. The in-person component of the class will change only if the instructor has scholarly related travel or becomes ill, the class or the campus are directed to change modality, or public health orders require a change of modality.
