

PSCI 4012-001 Global Development- Baker

This class is being taught as a hybrid in-person/remote class. Half of the class will be assigned to attend class on Tuesday and half to attend on Thursday. On days students do not attend, they will Zoom in to watch the lecture. Students are expected to attend class regularly and participate, and attendance and participation are graded components of the class. Grading will be based on two group projects, an individual-written research paper, and written examinations. Students who are ill, or required to quarantine or isolate temporarily will be accommodated with alternate work, but there is NO fully remote/online option to this class. The in-person component of the class will change only if the instructor becomes ill, the class or the campus are directed to change modality, or public health orders require a change of modality.
