Course Objective

This course is an advanced undergraduate course for students interested in the political economy of inequality and relevant public policies. The income gap between the most rich in the top one percent of the population and the rest, is the highest it has been since the financial crisis of 2008. The level of inequality is increasing not only in income flows, but also in the value of Americans' financial and social assets. This includes housing, educational attainment, and health outcomes. There is a debate on whether this is merely a natural result of the free market under capitalism, or if it represents the growth of an American oligarchy. Nonetheless, it is the most fundamental shift in the United States since the end of World War II. Comparatively, some European countries—England and Ireland, for example—have also seen large increases in inequality. Yet others, like Sweden and Germany, are exceptions to this growth in income and value gaps. While the United States is becoming more similar to some European countries in a number of aspects, it is also growing apart from others. Additionally, the growth of China and India as new economic powers in the international system has shifted global distributions of income and wealth, suggesting new welfare implications for different groups of Americans and Europeans.

This course will provide an in-depth understanding of factors that change the level of inequality in the US and in Europe, and its economic, political, and social consequences across these states over time. As such, this course is comparative in nature. We will discuss America and the European states by comparing and contrasting them. The goal of this comparative study is to understand why they are different, and why these differences may be crucial in understanding public policy outcomes. We will begin the course by discussing what inequality means, where it comes from, and what it looks like empirically. This brings us to focus on inequality in contemporary America. We will learn about the U.S. distributions of income and resources, and understand how the growth of inequality we see today came to be. We will focus on the causes of inequality, and what its consequences are for the U.S. economy, society, and politics. In addition, we will consider economic inequality through the lens of historical gender and racial inequalities in America, and how their legacies and persistence today affect the gaps we observe.

The course then shifts the focus to Europe. We will first consider Europe in light of our discussion of America in the first half of the course. Why is inequality in Europe broadly lower than it is in America? Will Europe eventually reach American levels of inequality? What could be done if policymakers were to prevent this? We will then look at differences in inequality between European countries and explore their causes and consequences. We will also consider Europe's particular experiences with immigration. In the last section, we will finally conclude the course by looking to the developing world, particularly China and India, and how their rise to international economic power is affecting global inequality.

Evaluation

For a total possible score of 100,000 points, your grade is made up of the following 3 components: 25 daily quizzes (1,000 per quiz; 25,000 total); two exams (25,000 per exam; 50,000 total); and a final paper (25,000). The grade breakdown of these components, along with their respective dates, is shown below.

You will automatically fail the entire course for plagiarism, cheating, fabrication, lying, bribery, threat, unauthorized access, resubmission, aiding academic dishonesty, and other behaviors I find unacceptable according to the University's Honor Code. Additionally, I will report all Honor Code violations to the Honor Council, the Department, and the Dean of Students.

- I. 25 Daily Quizzes (25,000 points): At the end of each class, you will be given a quiz based on the reading assignments and class discussion. The quizzes will appear on Canvas at 12:10 PM. You only need 5 minutes to complete each quiz, but you will have 15 minutes to submit the answers. If you miss a quiz, there is no make-up quiz. Instead, you may want to complete side quests to earn some extra points.
- II. You will have Exam 1, Exam 2, and Final Paper in this course. No final exam will be given for this course because you will have a final paper to write. On each exam, you will be given two questions, but you only need to answer one. All exams are open book; you are allowed to use any notes or books.
 - (a) Exam 1 (25,000 points)
 - Choose Exam 1A or 1B. If you end up completing both, your grade for Exam 1 will be averaged.
 - Exam 1A (Multiple Choice Questions and Short Answers)
 - 11:10 AM to 12:00 PM on Thursday, 2/25 via Canvas
 - I will make a study guide available by Tuesday, 2/16.

 - You must use quotation marks and provide proper citations when you use exact words of another author. You also need to cite an author whose argument you summarize or paraphrase in your papers. Your take-home exams must provide citations and a list of references for the sources of facts you use in them. Appropriate sources for papers will be discussed in class.

– Late exams will not be accepted.

III. Final Paper (25,000 points) – Wednesday, 5/5 (due via Canvas at 7:00 pm)

- [OPTION 1] You will choose two countries in Western Europe to compare and contrast their levels of inequality and relevant public policies. Be sure to mention which type of inequality constitutes the focus of your paper and demonstrate the theoretical and empirical link between the type of inequality and the public policies you have chosen. Are the levels of inequality and public policies different or similar across the two countries? Explain why they are similar or different using primary and secondary sources. What normative implications do your findings suggest?
- [OPTION 2] Write a paper on a topic of your choice. To select this option, you must talk to me by Thursday, April 22nd to get my approval.

Regrading Policy

If you have a grade complaint, please follow the steps below:

- You must wait at least 48 hours before contacting Sara Hoose.
- After 48 hours, you may contact Sara to ask questions or clarify comments. If there is an honest mistake (i.e. your total grade is miscalculated), you may contact Sara as soon as possible.
- After communicating with Sara, if you decide to submit a grade grievance anyway, email me within a week of receiving the graded exam. This formal grade grievance must confirm that you have met with Sara to talk about the exam and address why you believe you were unfairly graded, with specific details and supporting evidence along with the original graded exam. Once you file a formal grade grievance, I will ask a political science doctoral student to regrade the exam. Alternatively, I may regrade the exam myself.
- You must take the new grade even if the new grade is lower than the one you received initially.

Email Etiquette

Please do not address me by my first name or Mr. Shin. Other unacceptable salutations include informal greetings like "hey." The only acceptable forms are simple and the following: Professor Shin or Dr. Shin.

To help you write professional emails, I have posted some useful resources on Canvas about how to write emails to professors. This is a valuable skill to have as you navigate through college and prepare for your career. Please include a subject. I prefer something like "[PSCI 4106]" followed by something indicative about the purpose of your email. For instance, if you want to discuss classroom accommodation due to your disability, the subject of your email can be "[PSCI 4106] Disability Accommodation and Extra Exam Time."

Do not email us for the following reasons:

1. You missed a class session and want notes from us.

- Instead, consult your classmates.
2. You are going to miss a class session and want to let us know.
 - Letting us know does not make a difference.
 3. You want to schedule an appointment with Professor Shin.
 - Instead of sending Professor Shin emails, book an appointment via REDACTED ON PURPOSE and meet Professor Shin via Zoom at your appointment time: REDACTED ON PURPOSE.
 4. You want to schedule an appointment with Sara Hoose.
 - Instead of sending Sara emails, book an appointment via REDACTED ON PURPOSE and meet Sara via Zoom at your appointment time: REDACTED ON PURPOSE.

University Policies

Classroom Behavior

Both students and faculty are responsible for maintaining an appropriate learning environment in all instructional settings, whether in person, remote or online. Those who fail to adhere to such behavioral standards may be subject to discipline. Professional courtesy and sensitivity are especially important with respect to individuals and topics dealing with race, color, national origin, sex, pregnancy, age, disability, creed, religion, sexual orientation, gender identity, gender expression, veteran status, political affiliation or political philosophy. For more information, see the policies on classroom behavior and the Student Code of Conduct.

Requirements for COVID-19

This does not apply to our remote class, but you should review the following information for your other in-person or hybrid in-person/remote courses.

As a matter of public health and safety due to the pandemic, all members of the CU Boulder community and all visitors to campus must follow university, department and building requirements, and public health orders in place to reduce the risk of spreading infectious disease. Required safety measures at CU Boulder relevant to the classroom setting include:

- maintain 6-foot distancing when possible,
- wear a face covering in public indoor spaces and outdoors while on campus consistent with state and county health orders,
- clean local work area,
- practice hand hygiene,
- follow public health orders, and
- if sick and you live off campus, do not come onto campus (unless instructed by a CU Healthcare professional), or if you live on-campus, please alert CU Boulder Medical Services.

Students who fail to adhere to these requirements will be asked to leave class, and students who do not leave class when asked or who refuse to comply with these requirements will be referred to Student Conduct and Conflict Resolution. For more information, see the policies on COVID-19 Health and Safety and classroom behavior and the Student Code of Conduct. If you require accommodation because a disability prevents you from fulfilling these safety measures, please see the “Accommodation for Disabilities” statement on this syllabus.

All students who are new to campus must complete the COVID-19 Student Health and Expectations Course. Before coming to campus each day, all students are required to complete the Buff Pass.

Students who have tested positive for COVID-19, have symptoms of COVID-19, or have had close contact with someone who has tested positive for or had symptoms of COVID-19 must stay home and complete the Health Questionnaire and Illness Reporting Form remotely. In this class, if you are sick or quarantined, there is no need to let me know.

Accommodation for Disabilities

If you qualify for accommodations because of a disability, please submit your accommodation letter from Disability Services to your faculty member in a timely manner so that your needs can be addressed. Disability Services determines accommodations based on documented disabilities in the academic environment. Information on requesting accommodations is located on the Disability Services website. Contact Disability Services at 303-492-8671 or dsinfo@colorado.edu for further assistance. If you have a temporary medical condition, see Temporary Medical Conditions on the Disability Services website.

Preferred Student Names and Pronouns

CU Boulder recognizes that students' legal information doesn't always align with how they identify. Students may update their preferred names and pronouns via the student portal; those preferred names and pronouns are listed on instructors' class rosters. In the absence of such updates, the name that appears on the class roster is the student's legal name.

Honor Code

All students enrolled in a University of Colorado Boulder course are responsible for knowing and adhering to the Honor Code. Violations of the policy may include: plagiarism, cheating, fabrication, lying, bribery, threat, unauthorized access to academic materials, clicker fraud, submitting the same or similar work in more than one course without permission from all course instructors involved, and aiding academic dishonesty. All incidents of academic misconduct will be reported to the Honor Code (honor@colorado.edu); 303-492-5550). Students found responsible for violating the academic integrity policy will be subject to nonacademic sanctions from the Honor Code as well as academic sanctions from the faculty member. Additional information regarding the Honor Code academic integrity policy can be found at the Honor Code Office website.

Sexual Misconduct, Discrimination, Harassment and/or Related Retaliation

The University of Colorado Boulder (CU Boulder) is committed to fostering an inclusive and welcoming learning, working, and living environment. CU Boulder will not tolerate acts of sexual misconduct (harassment, exploitation, and assault), intimate partner violence (dating or domestic violence), stalking, or protected-class discrimination or harassment by members of our community. Individuals who believe they have been subject to misconduct or retaliatory actions for reporting a concern should contact the Office of Institutional Equity and Compliance (OIEC) at 303-492-2127 or cureport@colorado.edu. Information about the OIEC, university policies, anonymous reporting, and the campus resources can be found on the OIEC website.

Please know that faculty and graduate instructors have a responsibility to inform OIEC when made aware of incidents of sexual misconduct, dating and domestic violence, stalking, discrimination, harassment and/or related retaliation, to ensure that individuals impacted receive information about options for reporting and support resources.

Religious Holidays

Campus policy regarding religious observances requires that faculty make every effort to deal reasonably and fairly with all students who, because of religious obligations, have conflicts with scheduled exams, assignments or required attendance. In this class, you are required to let me know of any schedule conflict at least two weeks in advance. See the campus policy regarding religious observances for full details.
