

Make groups of three people.

What are three aspects of learning about numismatics you have found most interesting?

Pick one of them. How would you explain it to a visitor?

What is one “big idea” or “main theme” that you think is of greatest interest in the study of coins?

What are the most important things you think a museum visitor should learn about this?

What coins would you pick to illustrate your main theme, and why?

How would you use those same coins to illustrate one or more of the original three things you chose, that you found particularly interesting?
