I. PURPOSE

The Office of Management and Budget (OMB), a branch of the Executive Office of the President, issued Circular 2 CFR 200 to establish principles for administrative requirements and costs applicable to federally funded grants, contracts and other agreements. 2 CFR 200 also expects the University to establish and consistently apply compensation policies that apply uniformly to all faculty members, not just those working on federal awards. Sections 2 CFR 200.430\(h\)\(2\) and \(h\)\(5\) of that document address maximum salary rates for faculty members that can be charged to federal awards during and outside the academic year and this sets the basis for the campus 3/9^{ths} rule. These Federal rules and this campus policy apply to academic year faculty but do not apply to faculty paid on a fiscal year 12-month appointment.

II. POLICY STATEMENT

Federal regulations state that the allowable rate of pay for summer scholarly and creative work effort is based on the Institutional Base Salary (IBS), and the maximum that can be earned from federally funded awards in any one month, whether in summer or during the academic year, should not exceed 1/9th of the IBS. For academic year faculty appointments, campus guidelines allow for the maximum of an additional 3/9^{ths} of the IBS to be earned for summer work during the summer months,¹¹ including summer teaching, scholarly and creative work pay in any proportion, administrative appointments, etc., with no month exceeding 1/9th of the IBS. For the majority of faculty, their summer salary limit will be calculated from an IBS composed only of their academic year appointment base salary. However, when the faculty member has an administrative and/or endowed appointment, the academic year appointment base salary will be only a portion of their total IBS salary.

Compensation earned in any given summer month that is derived solely from teaching activities may not be subject to the 1/9th limit. This provision only applies when 1/9th of the faculty's academic year salary is less than what would be earned by teaching a summer course. If a faculty member has a unique, limited and exceptional circumstances that may merit a waiver of this 1/9th limit, such as when there is a strong curricular need for the teaching of a specific summer course, a written waiver may be requested from the Provost.

Faculty members often receive multiple grants for a single scholarly or creative work area.

- Paid effort should be supported by a proposed salary budget and adequate funding that is consistent with the plan that was agreed to at the time of the award.
- It is essential to ensure salary is not charged to one project for effort expended on a different project, or to pay for salary on a different project solely because funding is available.

¹ It is important to note that not all granting agencies allow the entire 3/9ths to be charged to the grant.

- The amount of effort devoted to summer scholarly and creative work should correspond to the percentage of the IBS salary being paid by the grant. 100% paid support should reflect no less than a standard 40-hour work week.

Summer salary charged to a scholarly and creative work grant must represent actual expended effort.

- Academic year faculty do not accrue paid vacation leave; therefore, planned vacation time that reduces work week effort to less than 40 hours cannot be charged to scholarly and creative work grants.
- It is inappropriate to have summer salary pay for effort expended during the academic year, regardless of the fund type supporting the summer salary.

When administrative and/or endowed appointment salaries are part of the summer effort and 3/9^{ths} of IBS earnings, only the remaining effort and salary can be earned from teaching and/or scholarly and creative works.

The Summer Salary Request Form is not required for those faculty involved solely with summer teaching. However, it is required for faculty who are engaged in summer teaching plus scholarly or creative works, or solely involved in scholarly or creative works. To comply with this policy, faculty should request all summer salary by the end of September to be disbursed by the end of October. After October, all requests will require additional justification and approval.

III. DEFINITIONS

Academic Year Faculty: Academic year faculty includes tenured and tenure-track (TTT) as well as non-tenure track faculty who have a 9-month appointment (eg, appointments as Professor, Assistant Professor, Senior Instructor, Instructor). Faculty with 12-month or fiscal year (FY) appointments are excluded from this definition and policy.

Academic Year Base Salary: Faculty academic year appointment base salary is compensation for a faculty member's time spent on a mix of scholarly or creative work, instruction, service, administration, or other instructional activities according to their workload formulation. It determines the maximum rate that can be charged to sponsored projects.²

Institutional Base Salary (IBS): The compensation set by the University for faculty academic year salary, whether that faculty member's time is spent on scholarly or creative work, instruction, service, administration, or other instructional activities. CU Boulder's IBS includes academic year salary, and any academic year compensation earned from administrative appointments and/or endowed professor or endowed chair appointments. The IBS does not include overload teaching, continuing education appointments, monetary awards, compensation earned for services performed external to the University, administrative salary paid during the summer months, and endowed professor or endowed chair stipends paid during the summer months.

IV. IMPLEMENTATION OF THIS POLICY

The Department of Human Resources (HR), the Office of the Provost, the Office of Contracts and Grants (OCG), the Office of Faculty Affairs (OFA), and the Research & Innovation Office (RIO) all contributed to the creation of this policy. As stipulated by APS #1012, Sponsored Research Policies, each of these units should develop written procedures, as needed, to provide guidance on implementing it.
