Brief biographical sketch:
Gordon Gamm is a local trial attorney, who graduated from Tulane University Law School. Gordon is writing a book on Humanism. He has represented all of the Humanist organizations in the U.S., The American Humanist Association, The Center for Inquiry, Humanistic Judaism, and The American Ethical Union as an attorney before state and federal courts, including the United States Supreme Court. He served on the board of the AHA for 6 years where he was chair of the committee to write the Humanist Manifesto III. In his capacity of representing the humanist organizations he has defined humanism for the court. He is presently working on a supreme court case for the AHA that will have been argued on February 27th about the separation of church and state under the Establishment clause of the 1st Amendment.
