OFFICE AND CONTACT INFORMATION

Section 1.1: Office Location and Daily Schedule

The Office of the Psychology Club is found in the Muenzinger Psychology Building in room D446D. The office is shared with the CU Boulder Psi Chi Chapter. Members of either the Psychology Club, Psi Chi, or both will be present in the office for the majority of the typical business day: 9am-5pm Monday-Friday.

Section 1.2: Office Hours of the Board

The officers of the Psychology Club hold two hours each of office hours per week, usually in 1-hour increments. The complete schedule of office hours by name can be found on the door of the office.

Section 1.3: Contacting the Officers

The officers of the Psychology Club can be contacted in person at the designated times during office hours, or by email. Email addresses for each officer are found on the door of the office or the Psychology Club website. The club has a promotional Instagram account to announce upcoming events, as well a BuffConnect page and GroupMe for general members to join to stay updated on club happenings. An update website will contain all relevant information for club members and the public.

ARTICLE II:
OBJECTIVES AND HAPPENINGS

Section 2.1: Club Mission Statement.

The CU Boulder Psychology Club strives to support and improve the mental health of psychology undergraduates and friends through social events focused on positivity and advice for healthy living.

Section 2.2: Club Events and Happenings

Common events held by the club include speakers pertaining to a wide realm of psychological topics; including but not limited to CU Boulder professors discussing relationships, the psychology and neuroscience of exercise, informative talks on applying to graduate school, an eating disorder specialist, and a Psychology Department alumnus who is now a licensed social worker in Colorado. The club also holds social events like trivia competitions, self-care nights, and movie nights to encourage stress-free activities for CU students. All events are held with the goal of informing CU students about interesting topics in psychology, as well as promoting good mental in a relaxed and fun environment.

ARTICLE III: MEMBERSHIP AND OFFICERS

Section 3.1: Open Membership

There are no requirements to be a member and/or take part in Psychology Club events. Events are put on for the benefit of any and all CU students, with the hopes of students enjoying themselves and becoming more informed on interesting topics in Psychology. It is not required that members are studying psychology to attend events.

Section 3.2: Officers and Leadership

In order to become an officer of the Psychology Club, candidates will need to prepare a short speech explaining why they would be a great fit for their intended position, and what they can offer to the board to improve the club. Candidates must attend the election date set by the current board of officers. All positions require a semester-long term commitment, and all positions re-open for elections at the end of each semester. Running for President and Vice President require at least one previous semester as a board member for the Psychology Club. There are no specific requirements for all other board positions, but it is encouraged that potential officers are responsible, effective at time management, enthusiastic, and organized.

ARTICLE IV: DUES AND EXPENSES

Section 4.1: Members and Dues

There are no required dues or payments for members/attendees of the Psychology Club. Events are free for all attendees, including occasional food and/or beverages that are provided.

Section 4.2: Club Merchandise

The current board is working to order Psychology Club t-shirts that will display the newly-designed club logo. These shirts will hopefully be available to members for purchase early next semester (Spring 2020). The shirts are estimated to cost around $15 each. This will be an optional purchase for members and/or anyone that likes to attend club events.
